The Honorable Steve Russell U.S. House of Representatives 128 Cannon House Office Building Washington, DC 20515

Dear Colleague:

Pursuant to House Rule 25, clause 5(d)(2), the Committee on Ethics hereby approves your proposed trip to Palo Alto, California, scheduled for March 2 to 5, 2018, sponsored by the Aspen Institute, Inc., with financial support from the MacArthur Foundation, and the Carnegie Corporation of New York.

You must complete a Member/Officer Post-Travel Disclosure Form and file it, together with a Sponsor Post-Travel Disclosure Form completed by the trip sponsor, with the Clerk of the House within 15 days after your return from travel. As part of that filing, you are also required to attach a copy of this letter and both the Traveler and Primary Trip Sponsor Forms (including attachments) you previously submitted to the Committee in seeking pre-approval for this trip. You must also report all travel expenses totaling more than $390 from a single source on the "Travel" schedule of your annual Financial Disclosure Statement covering this calendar year. Finally, Travel Regulation § 404(d) also requires you to keep a copy of all request forms and supporting information provided to the Committee for three subsequent Congresses from the date of travel.

If you have any further questions, please contact the Committee's Office of Advice and Education at extension 5-7103.

Sincerely,

Susan W. Brooks Chairwoman

Agenda + Flight info FINDING A DIPLOMATIC SOLUTION TO THE NORTH KOREAN CRISIS

Agenda overview as of 1/29/2018 THE ASPEN INSTITUTE CONGRESSIONAL PROGRAM March 2-5, 2018 Stanford University, Stanford, California

FRIDAY, March 2:

Participants travel to Stanford, California and arrive mid-day Rep. Steve Russell departs Washington, DC @ 7:50 am on United 2042 and arrives in San Francisco @ 11:19 am and is transported to Stanford, California to begin the conference.

6:30-8:30 pm Dinner Speakers

SETTING THE STAGE:

THE HIGH STAKES AT ISSUE IN RESOLVING THE NORTH KOREAN CRISIS

Tensions have increased considerably during the last year as North Korea has tested both nuclear devices and intercontinental missiles, which now pose a threat to U.S. territory. There are questions as to whether China, which shares the longest border with North Korea, might also quickly be drawn into any North Korean engagement, ratcheting up the stakes considerably. Ambassador Eikenberry will highlight factors that have brought us to this crisis and set the stage for the discussions over the weekend.

> Karl Eikenberry, Director, U.S.-Asia Security Initiative, Stanford University; former U.S. Ambassador to Afghanistan

THE MERITS OF ACHIEVING PEACE THROUGH DIPLOMACY

Secretary Rice will highlight the merits of diplomacy as a tool for advancing U.S. interests, and she will give her perspective on how best to find a solution to this crisis.

George P. Shultz, former Secretary of State, Thomas W. & Susan B. Ford Distinguished Fellow, The Hoover Institution, Stanford University

SATURDAY, March 3:

7:00-8:20 am Breakfast

8:20-8:45 am Shuttle from hotel to the Stanford University campus

9:00 am INTRODUCTION AND FRAMEWORK

The scholars for the conference will be briefly introduced. This segment will highlight the educational objective of the meeting and how the conference will be conducted, how those with questions will be recognized and how responses will be timed to allow for as many questions and answers as possible. This format is especially important to guarantee full participation with so many knowledgeable and experienced people around the table.

Dan Glickman, Executive Director, Aspen Institute Congressional Program;

9:15 am Roundtable Discussion

THE HISTORICAL CONTEXT THAT LEADS TO THE BRINK OF WAR

The Korean War from June 1950 to July 1953 caused tremendous loss of life on the peninsula with massive devastation, ending in a truce—but never a formal armistice. The demilitarized zone (DMZ), a short strip of land between North and South Korea managed under the terms of the Armistice Agreement, was a unique creation to help manage this outcome. It is an area where armed forces face each other to this day. [A North Korean defector was recently shot in this zone while trying to flee.] North Korea continues to evoke the devastation of the Korean War in its anti-American rhetoric, indicating that this history is used as a basis for its policy that regards the U.S. as an enemy subject to threat by its nuclear program and missile capability. Ambassador Stephens will highlight this historical context that has contributed to the policy standoff we face today.

- How much does North Korea's view of the Korean War shape its current world view?
- To what degree does the lack of a formal peace agreement ending the Korean War exacerbate the current stalemate?
- Is there any re-examination of history that would lessen North Korea's anti-American attitude?
- Would cooperation on Americans still listed as MIA/POW from the Korean conflict contribute to improved relations?
- How deeply rooted is North Korea's identity as a country and as a nationality?
- Is reunification a realistic aspiration? If so, what governance model is likely to dominate a unified Korea?

Kathy Stephens, Fellow, Korea Program, Shorenstein Asia-Pacific Research Center, Stanford University, former U.S. Ambassador to Korea

10:45 am Break

11:00 am Roundtable Discussion

AN ANALYSIS OF THE CAPABILITES AND INTENTIONS OF NORTH KOREA AND OTHER PLAYERS

A sober and realistic understanding of the capabilities and intentions of North Korea, South Korea, China, Russia, Japan and the United States is necessary in order to shape the most appropriate policy responses. North Korea has already conducted six nuclear tests and numerous missile launches with increasing range. Are the increasingly alarmist media reports a fair assessment or playing into hysteria?

- What is the distinction between plutonium based nuclear weapons and highly enriched uranium based nuclear weapons and what relevance is this difference for U.S. policy makers?
- What are the nuclear bomb capabilities of North Korea?
- Does North Korea have a viable hydrogen bomb program?
- What are the intercontinental missile capabilities of North Korea today?
- What are the limitations of merging these nuclear and missile capabilities?
- Is North Korea dependent on external suppliers to support these capabilities? If so, who is providing these supplies?
- What are North Korea's cyber capabilities?

- Does North Korea possess threatening biological or chemical weapons capabilities?
- What could be the impact of a high-altitude nuclear detonation; is fallout or electromagnetic pulse a significant concern?
- Would North Korea act alone if it embarked on nuclear aggression?
- What is the capability of South Korea, Japan, and China to counter any North Korean military aggression?
- Which neighbors might cooperate against any of these threats? To what degree do they rely on the U.S. for their security?
- What are the possibilities of an accident or a false warning that could trigger a nuclear conflict?
- What are the capabilities of the THAAD missile defense system? Is it adequate?

Siegfried Hecker, Senior Fellow, Freeman Spogli Institute for International Studies, Stanford University; former Director of the Los Alamos National Laboratory Sue Mi Terry, Senior Fellow for Korean Studies at CSIS; former North Korea analyst for the CIA

1:00-2:30 pm Luncheon Remarks

SCENARIOS FOR A SOLUTION

Secretary Perry was deeply involved in negotiations with North Korea during his tenure as Secretary of Defense and afterwards. He will draw lessons from that experience as he shares his views for achieving a diplomatic solution.

William Perry, Senior Fellow, Center for International Security and Cooperation, Stanford University; former Secretary of Defense

2:30-4:00 pm Roundtable Discussion

UNDERSTANDING THE FULL RANGE OF CONSEQUENCES OF WAR

As military options are discussed with increasing frequency, it is important to fully understand the range of impact that could follow. Detonation of nuclear weapons is regarded as a last resort, but if it occurred, the devastation and impact could be wide ranging. Even a nonnuclear military engagement has high risk of significant casualties given that Seoul is less than 40 miles from the North Korean border and in range of traditional artillery. In addition to loss of life and destruction of property, there could be regional environmental impacts, as well as global economic impacts.

- A November Congressional Research Service report estimated the range of casualties of conflict could be from 30,000 to 300,000 within the first few days of conflict.
 Depending on the length of conflict, types of weapons used and depth of engagement, this report also says casualty figures could be in the millions. Is this overstated?
- Does the U.S. military have the capability to quickly evacuate over 100,000 U.S. civilians in South Korea in a conflict?
- What would be the potential differentiation between military and civilian loss of life?
- What are the distinctions between a pre-emptive nuclear strike and a reactive use of nuclear weapons?
- What would be the impact on neighbors Japan, China, and Russia—would they all face potential direct or collateral damage?
- What would be the long-term environmental consequences of a nuclear war, including radioactive contamination?

- Would conflict spark a mass outflow of refugees from North Korea and a humanitarian challenge?
- · Would conflict have global economic consequences?
- What could be the range of post-conflict reconstruction costs?

Marcus Noland, Executive Vice President, Peterson Institute for International Economics Barry Posen, Director, Security Studies Program, Massachusetts Institute of Technology Scott Sagan, Professor of Political Science, Stanford University; former consultant to the Secretary of Defense

4:00-4:15 pm Walk to the Stanford Teleconference Center

4:30-5:30 pm Teleconference with Chinese via uplink to Stanford's Beijing Center CHINA'S PERSPECTIVE

China, as North Korea's neighbor and largest trading partner, is seen as having the most potential influence to change North Korea's current trajectory. Three Chinese experts will communicate China's perspectives on resolving this crisis. They will join us via live teleconference link using Stanford's Beijing facilities. Participants in Stanford will be able to communicate with and see the Chinese in real time with the assistance of this technology.

- What is China's long-range vision for the Korean peninsula?
- How long can the status quo continue?
- What would cause China to militarily engage in the Korean peninsula?
- What incentives would China need to lessen North Korea's dependence on China?

Fan Gaoyue, retired Senior Colonel with China's People's Liberation Army, former Director of the Center for American Military Studies Academy of Military Sciences, currently with Sichuan University Wang Dong, Associate Professor and Deputy Executive Director, School of International Studies, Peking University Yang Xiyu, Senior Fellow, Chinese Institute of International Studies, Beijing

7:00-9:00 pm Dinner Speakers

SCENARIOS OF POTENTIAL MILITARY CONFLICT

American, Korean and Japanese current and former military officials are gathering in early February to simulate several scenarios of potential military conflict. Admiral Blair and a Japanese counterpart who are participating in this exercise will share their findings.

Admiral Dennis Blair, former Commander of the Pacific Fleet; former Director of National Intelligence Tsuneo Watanabe, Senior Research Fellow, Sasakawa Peace Foundation, Tokyo

THE ROLE OF REGIONAL PLAYERS AND INCENTIVES NECESSARY TO LEVERAGE DIPLOMATIC ACTION

This discussion is designed to explore the incentives that might be necessary to leverage actors to move toward a diplomatic solution. One example is the "freeze for a freeze" concept—freezing annual military exercises in exchange for a North Korean freeze on missile programs. Another example could be reducing shoreline surveillance flights off the coast of China in exchange for Chinese cooperation. Another possibility would end China's support of North Korea if the U.S. removed its military presence from South Korea.

- Does the U.S. have to take a leading or a supporting role in a solution?
- Must South Korea and Japan cooperate to address the concerns of a common threat from North Korea, and is such cooperation realistic?
- Is China content with the status quo? If not, what would motivate it to act?
- The U.S. has led the UN Security Council to pass eight sanctions resolutions. Will additional sanctions be effective?
- Is an eventual collapse of North Korea inevitable, and if so, what relevance does this have for policy makers?
- Should U.S. policy explicitly seek regime change?
- Is the cooperation between North and South on participation in the Winter Olympics indicative of a lasting positive trend?

11:00-1:00 Roundtable Discussion

THE ART OF DIPLOMACY: KEY ASPECTS OF A POTENTIAL AGREEMENT

This discussion will explore the key elements of a diplomatic settlement, and how these elements would be acceptable to the key players. Lessons would be drawn from two earlier diplomatic efforts—the Agreed Framework (1994-2002) and the Six-Party Talks (2005-2009).

- Is denuclearization of the peninsula realistic?
- Is U.S. recognition of North Korea a possibility? Would that motivate North Korea to step back its aggressive actions?
- Is there a multilateral role in reaching and enforcing an agreement? Or is this primarily a bilateral negotiation between the U.S. and North Korea, or South and North Korea?
- Are there lessons to be learned from the six-party talks?
- Would direct talks between the U.S. and North Korea be productive?
- Under what conditions could the U.S. consider normalizing relations with North Korea?
- Can the U.S. tolerate a nuclear-capable North Korea with containment and deterrence?
- Are there any applicable lessons to be drawn from the Iran agreement?
- Would a nuclear-armed South Korea be a logical outcome?

Is removal of U.S. troops from the Korean peninsula a factor?

1:00-2:00 pm Working Luncheon

Discussion continues between Members of Congress and scholars on the policy challenges in finding a diplomatic solution to the North Korean crisis.

2:00-3:30 pm Roundtable Discussion

POLICY REFLECTIONS FOR MEMBERS OF CONGRESS ONLY

Congress is one of the three co-equal branches of the U.S. government. Accordingly, Members of Congress will be encouraged to think creatively about how Congress can contribute toward reaching a peaceful resolution of the crisis.

- What potential legislative initiatives could be helpful?
- Is North Korea's authoritarian regime too toxic and too abusive of human rights for the U.S. to find areas of cooperation?
- Is the travel ban productive?
- Must Congress authorize any use of military force?

Congressional Program

The Honorable Steve Russell U.S. House of Representatives Washington, DC 20515

Dear Steve:

I would like to invite you and Cindy to participate in a special congressional weekend seminar on Finding A Diplomatic Solution to the North Korean Crisis, March 2-5, 2018, at the Stanford University campus in Palo Alto, California. We have limited space and must hear from you proactively as soon as possible if you wish to participate.

The increasing tensions surrounding North Korea's pursuit of the capability to explode a nuclear bomb on U.S. soil have escalated considerably during recent months with some fearing we could be on the brink of war—with drastic consequences. We are assembling some of the best scholarship in the U.S. available from Stanford University, with additional American expertise from other institutions, as well as inclusion of Korean and Chinese voices—to allow Members of Congress to focus on this crisis in detail. A tentative agenda outline is attached.

Attendance is by invitation only, with no outside observers, lobbyists, or congressional staff. Funding is provided solely by grants from foundations—no government, individual, foreign, corporate or special interest funds are accepted.

Under guidelines established by the House Committee on Standards of Official Conduct, we will provide you with a signed Private Sponsor Travel Certification Form affirming that no lobbyists fund this activity, that the Aspen Institute does not hire or retain lobbyists, and that no lobbyists will be present. Our purpose is education, not advocacy.

If your accompanying spouse or family member is a registered lobbyist, under the ethics rules of the House, their participation would not be allowed. Guidance from the Committee will not allow us to accept any enrollments less than one month prior to the conference.

Departure will be on Friday, March 2^{nd} and we will return on Monday, March 5^{th} before scheduled votes that evening. Should you accept the invitation, it is required that you participate through the duration of the conference.

Expenses for you and Cindy, including airfare, lodging and meals will be paid by the Aspen Institute Congressional Program. Under the ethics rules, no expenses are covered for entertainment or recreation. Congressional participants are limited to only one accompanying family member.

The Aspen Institute, an independent, nonprofit organization founded in 1950, provides a nonpartisan, neutral forum for leaders to discuss critical issues. The Institute's Congressional Program is designed to promote leadership on selected public policy issues in the Congress by bringing legislators together with internationally-recognized scholars and analysts in high-level discussion. Since the program's inception, over 410 Members of Congress have participated in the 135 conferences we have conducted.

Enclosed is a fact sheet on the program. In addition to answering any questions you may have, it has proven to be useful in responding to public and press inquiries.

Additionally, we hold breakfast meetings in the Capitol throughout the year to keep Members of Congress up-to-date between our annual conferences. We hope you will be able to participate in the extended educational offerings of our breakfast series.

We will provide airfare, accommodations and meals for you and your spouse or family member.

If you have any questions, please feel free to call me at 202-736-5825. I hope you and Cindy will join us for this important conference.

Sincerely,

Dan Glickman

Enclosures

The Aspen Institute Congressional Program is a nongovernmental, nonpartisan educational program for members of the U.S. Congress. It provides lawmakers with a stronger grasp of critical public policy issues by convening high-level conferences in which legislators are brought together with internationally recognized academics, experts and leaders to study their ideas and to explore various policy alternatives. Political neutrality is essential to the educational mission of the program. There is no identification with a political or party viewpoint and no endorsement of specific legislation. Its Executive Director is former Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman and its founder was former Senator Dick Clark. Projects in 2017 focusing on U.S. policy challenges included: U.S.-Russia Relations, America's Interests in Asia; India's Emergence and Development Challenges, and Energy Policy Opportunities.

- Participation. Since the program's inception, 410 members of Congress (including 35% of the current Congress), 194 international parliamentarians, political and government leaders, and 921 scholar/experts have been involved. Participation is limited to these individuals, their spouses and foundation representatives. No lobbyists, congressional staff or outside observers are permitted.
- Funding. Since its inception, the Congressional Program has been funded solely by established foundations. Funding is not accepted from lobbyists, governments, corporations, private citizens or special interests; and honoraria are not paid to members of Congress or scholars. Legislators feel free to engage openly because of their confidence in the integrity of the program. In 2017, funding was provided by the following foundations: Carnegie Corporation (foundation) of New York, The Democracy Fund, the Ford Foundation, the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation, the Heising-Simons Foundation, the William and Flora Hewlett Foundation, the Henry Luce Foundation, the John D. and Catherine T. MacArthur Foundation, the Rockefeller Foundation, Rockefeller Brothers Fund, and the Sasakawa Peace Foundation, USA.
- Ethics. The Congressional Program is in full compliance with the rules adopted by the House in 2007, and also conforms to provisions in the "Honest Leadership and Open Government Act of 2007." Lobbyists have no role whatsoever: they do not plan, fund, or participate in program activities. The Aspen Institute does not employ or retain registered lobbyists. All conference agendas are reviewed by the House and Senate ethics committees.
- Venues. Members of Congress face massive demands on their time. Convening conferences outside Washington gives lawmakers an opportunity to devote time, over a four-day period, for serious learning and reflection without interruption. To supplement the annual conferences, 20-25 breakfast meetings are held each year in the Capitol featuring distinguished scholars and international experts with both academic and practical experience on program topics.
