Dear Colleague:

Pursuant to House Rule 25, clause 5(d)(2), the Committee on Ethics hereby approves your and your spouse's proposed trip to Aspen, Colorado, scheduled for October 12 to 15, 2019, sponsored by Aspen Institute, Inc., with financial support from Henry Luce Foundation, and Rockefeller Brothers Fund, and Democracy Fund.

You must complete a Member/Officer Post-Travel Disclosure Form and file it, together with a Sponsor Post-Travel Disclosure Form completed by the trip sponsor, with the Clerk of the House within 15 days after your return from travel. As part of that filing, you are also required to attach a copy of this letter and both the Traveler and Primary Trip Sponsor Forms (including attachments) you previously submitted to the Committee in seeking pre-approval for this trip. You must also report all travel expenses totaling more than $390 from a single source on the "Travel" schedule of your annual Financial Disclosure Statement covering this calendar year. Finally, Travel Regulation § 404(d) also requires you to keep a copy of all request forms and supporting information provided to the Committee for three subsequent Congresses from the date of travel.

If you have any further questions, please contact the Committee's Office of Advice and Education at extension 5-7103.

Sincerely,

Theodore E. Deutch

Pre-dinner Remarks

MEETING U.S. ENERGY GOALS OF AFFORDABILITY, RELIABILITY & THE ENVIRONMENT

Minnesota-based Xcel Energy, which operates in eight states and is Colorado's largest power supplier, has set out an ambitious corporate plan to produce 100% carbon-free electricity by 2050. Their plans include the country's largest multi-state wind plan with 12 new, low-cost wind farms in seven states; retiring two coal plants in Colorado and adding significant wind and solar capacity as well as large-scale battery storage; retiring 23 coal units over a span of 22 years, which currently represents 50% of its coal-fueled capacity, and a role for nuclear energy as well. Xcel concedes that reaching its goal may require technologies that are not yet commercially available.

Ben Fowke, Chairman of the Board, XCEL Energy

7:00 PM – 9:00 PM

Working Dinner

Seating is arranged to expose participants to a diverse range of views and provide the opportunity for a meaningful exchange of ideas. Scholars and lawmakers are rotated daily. Discussion will focus on the opportunities and challenges in the transition to a clean energy economy.

Roundtable Discussion

THE TRANSITION TO THE ELECTRIC CENTURY IS UNDERWAY

Even though U.S. oil production has doubled in the last 20 years, renewables continue to provide a growing share of America's energy supply. The pace of technological change, the economies of scale driving down the costs of renewables, and pressures to act in regard to climate change all contribute to an energy economy in transition from a reliance on fossil fuels to a low-carbon future.

FOSTERING TECHNOLOGICAL INNOVATIONS TO MEET AMERICA'S ENERGY CHALLENGES: PROSPECTS FOR OIL, COAL, GAS, NUCLEAR, SOLAR, WIND & ENERGY EFFICIENCY

Our energy options depend on our technology: A diverse menu of technologies provides a rich menu of choices of energy for transportation, electricity, home heating, and industry.

Technological development depends on a complex mixture of market demand, public policy, government and private research & development (R&D), and innovation ecosystems.

- How have today's energy technologies been impacted by public policy—including, e.g., directional drilling, fracking, nuclear power, solar, and wind?
- What are the best practices for federal energy R&D? Can federal policy incentivize privately funded research?
- Will technology provide a gateway for the fossil fuel industry's future through carbon sequestration?
- Is greater use of natural gas a long term trend to serve U.S. energy needs? If so, do policies promote this?
- Is there a need for government regulation to promote better energy efficiency, or are market factors sufficient?
- Is there a need for a strong federal building code to promote energy efficient buildings?
- Why is nuclear power on the decline in the U.S.?

MEETING THE GROWING DEMAND FOR ELECTRICITY WITH SOUND, PRACTICAL, AFFORDABLE POLICIES

Energy tax preferences tend to favor the upper class who can afford initial capital outlays. Energy costs typically are a higher burden for lower income families who often have older homes and appliances, inefficient cars, and less access to renewable energy sources. Government and private industry alike play a vital role in the design of our future energy system, including regulating utility rates and the cost of electricity as technologies change and demand rises.

- To what extent are energy efficient technologies affordable and accessible to the public?
- Are financial incentives or policy mandates more effective for promoting innovation and low-carbon investments?
- To what degree are tax credits and financing mechanisms motivating factors for “clean” energy projects?
- Is variable surge pricing throughout the day, tied to demand-load pressures, an effective incentive for consumers to reduce their electrical consumption?
- How do technology prices differ in character from commodity prices? What are the implications of recent price trends?
- In a low carbon future, how can reliable baseload power be insured?

COMPUTER MODELING OF POLICY SCENARIOS

Both nongovernmental organizations Climate Interactive and Energy Innovation offer interactive, computer-based ways to test the impact of various policies by modelling assumptions over time. Founders of both models will demonstrate their capability to provide insights into the impact of various strategies that may be employed.

THE CHANGING ROLE OF CARS IN AMERICAN LIFE & IMPLICATIONS FOR ENERGY NEEDS

In 2017, CO₂ emissions from the transportation sector surpassed the power sector for the first time in over 40 years. With four million hybrids and over half a million plug-in electric cars on American roads today, changes in vehicle fleets and transportation needs are already underway. The changing roles of cars ahead—with widespread ride-sharing and potential autonomous vehicles displacing traditional drivers—could have dramatic impacts on historical driving patterns and energy use.

- As the average age of vehicles on the road continues to increase, how are companies and government policies adapting?
- How crucial is development of better battery storage power to a successful Electric Vehicle (EV) evolution, and does this have promise?
- Is a charging infrastructure for electric cars a public or private responsibility, and what are the implications on the power sector?
- Do road building standards need to be changed for automated vehicles?
- Will the administration's plan to rollback fuel efficiency standards, now at an average of 37 mpg compared to the previous goal of 54 mpg, divide the American auto market with 13 different states having different standards?
- What are the implications of the effort by the federal government to abolish California's stricter auto emissions standards?

INFRASTRUCTURE FOR AMERICA'S CHANGING TRANSPORTATION NEEDS

Infrastructure investment is a perennial topic of bipartisan interest in policy debates. The American Society of Civil Engineers rates the domestic energy infrastructure a "D+" because of its age, bottlenecks and vulnerability to disruption. Analysts are forecasting the "three revolutions (3Rs)" ahead in transportation: electrification, automation, and sharing. How does the U.S. most efficiently design the infrastructure needs to meet these upcoming revolutionary changes?

- Are government incentives for vehicle electrification necessary?
- Will the gas tax become an outdated method of infrastructure financing?
- Is government research to improve battery storage necessary?
- What role does government have in car-sharing?
- How can a widespread national charging infrastructure materialize?
- Will parking garages become obsolete?
- What will the impact of the 3Rs be on the insurance industry, and how will they impact consumers?

IMPLICATIONS FOR AMERICAN JOBS

Employment data indicates that slightly more than 50% of Americans who work in the energy sector (3.5 million) contribute to a low emissions economy. On an economy-wide scale, jobs in transportation, industry and manufacturing, infrastructure, and energy will all be influenced by the new energy economy.

- How can the renewable energy industry learn from the boom and bust oil and gas economy to promote long-term job growth throughout the transition and beyond?
- What are the opportunities in adapting infrastructure and transitioning to a clean energy economy for American jobs and prosperity?
- Do displaced workers from conventional fuels jobs need federal support to learn new workforce skills?

ENERGY LESSONS FROM THE STATES

States are increasingly taking actions toward a low-carbon future, whether for environmental, employment, resilience, community impact, or other reasons. States are looking to manage their own energy futures, considering clean energy goals, and evaluating the fate of existing infrastructure.

For example, Wyoming—while a major producer of coal, natural gas, and crude oil—is the site of the country’s largest planned wind farm, a $5 billion project of up to 1,000 turbines (enough electricity for a million homes). Colorado has a goal of producing 100 percent of its power from renewable sources by 2040. Western states are cooperating on developing a system for fast charging EVs. The governors of Wyoming and Colorado will elaborate on these plans and more which may have applicable lessons for federal lawmakers.

Dan Glickman

Executive Director

Congressional Program

The Honorable Greg Stanton
U.S. House of Representatives
Washington, DC 20515

Dear Greg:

I would like to invite you and Nicole to participate in a congressional conference on Innovating a New Energy Economy: Benefits for Jobs, Climate, and American Prosperity, October 12-15, 2019, in Aspen, Colorado during the October recess. We have limited space and must hear from you proactively as soon as possible if you wish to participate.

Technological advances have led to an expansion of American capacity to produce high quantities of oil and gas as well as further the use of renewables and increased energy efficiencies, making the U.S. more energy independent. At the same time, major changes in the auto industry are underway with the introduction of electric and autonomous vehicles which are sure to significantly impact energy consumption in the future. These energy policy factors, which will have huge implications for the economy, climate and our prosperity, will be analyzed in a comprehensive three-day focus, drawing policy examples from regional states and Midwest utilities. The agenda outline is attached.

We will have a mix of prominent American scholars and energy practitioners to assist our discussions. Attendance is by invitation only, with no outside observers, lobbyists, or congressional staff. Funding is provided solely by grants from foundations—no government, individual, corporate or special interest funds are accepted.

Under guidelines established by the House Committee on Standards of Official Conduct, we will provide you with a signed Private Sponsor Travel Certification Form affirming that no lobbyists fund this activity, that the Aspen Institute does not hire or retain lobbyists, and that no lobbyists will be present. Our purpose is education, not advocacy.

If your accompanying spouse or family member is a registered lobbyist, under the ethics rules of the House, their participation would not be allowed. Guidance from the Committee will not allow us to accept any enrollments after September 12th.

Departure will be on Saturday, October 12th and we will return on Tuesday, October 15th. Should you accept the invitation, it is required that you participate through the duration of the conference.

Travel expenses, including airfare on a carrier with whom we have negotiated a fare, lodging and meals will be paid by the Aspen Institute Congressional Program. Under the ethics rules, no expenses are covered for entertainment or recreation. Congressional participants are limited to only one accompanying family member.

The Aspen Institute, an independent, nonprofit organization founded in 1950, provides a nonpartisan, neutral forum for leaders to discuss critical issues. The Institute's Congressional Program is designed to promote leadership on selected public policy issues in the Congress by bringing legislators together with internationally-recognized scholars and analysts in high-level discussion. Since the program's inception, over 460 Members of Congress have participated in the 139 conferences we have conducted.

Enclosed is a fact sheet on the program. In addition to answering any questions you may have, it has proven to be useful in responding to public and press inquiries.

Additionally, we hold breakfast meetings in the Capitol throughout the year to keep Members of Congress up-to-date between our annual conferences. We hope you will be able to participate in the extended educational offerings of our breakfast series.

If you have any questions, please feel free to call me at 202-736-5825. I hope you will join us for this important conference.

Sincerely,
