MODERATOR JOY REID

Joy-Ann M. Lomena-Reid (born December 8, 1968), known professionally as Joy Reid, is an American cable television host, MSNBC national correspondent, and liberal political commentator.^[3] In 2016, The Hollywood Reporter described her as one of the political pundits "who have been at the forefront of the cable-news conversations this election season".^[1] That same year, she wrote a book on the recent history of the Democratic Party called Fracture: Barack Obama, the Clintons, and the Racial Divide.^[4] She hosted the weekly MSNBC morning show, AM Joy, and in 2019 published the book, The Man Who Sold America: Trump and the Unraveling of the American Story. On July 9, 2020, MSNBC announced that Reid would host The ReidOut, a new Washington-based weeknight show in the 7 p.m. Eastern time slot vacated in March by Hardball host Chris Matthews' retirement.

Reid was born Joy-Ann Lomena in Brooklyn, New York City.^[7] Her father was from the Democratic Republic of the Congo,^[8] and her mother a college professor and nutritionist from Guyana.^[8] Her parents met in graduate school at the University of Iowa in Iowa City.^[7] Reid was raised Methodist and has one sister and one brother.^[7] Her father was an engineer who was mostly absent from the family; her parents eventually divorced and her father returned to the Congo.^[7] She was raised mostly in Denver, Colorado, until the age of 17, when her mother died of breast cancer^[8] and she moved to Flatbush, Brooklyn, to live with an aunt.^[7] Reid graduated from Harvard University in 1991 with a concentration in film studies.^{[9][10]}

In a 2013 interview, Reid recalled that her college experience was a quick immersion into a demographically opposite place from where she lived, from a community that was eighty percent African American to a community that was six percent African American. She had to learn to live with roommates and people who were not her family. She paid her own bills and tuition while at Harvard and said it was a good learning and growing experience overall.^[11]

In 1997, Reid married Jason Reid, who later became a documentary film editor.^[2] The couple have three children.^[7]

Reid began her journalism career in 1997, leaving New York and her job at a business consulting firm to begin working in South Florida for a WSVN Channel 7 morning show.^[12] She left journalism in 2003 to work with the group America Coming Together to oppose the Iraq War and President George W. Bush. She later returned to broadcasting as a talk radio host and worked on Barack Obama's 2008 presidential campaign.^[1]

From 2006 to 2007, Reid was the co-host of Wake Up South Florida, a morning radio talk show broadcast from Radio One's then-Miami affiliate WTPS, alongside "James T" Thomas.^[8] She served as managing editor of The Grio^[13] (2011–2014), a political columnist for Miami Herald (2003–2015), and the editor of The Reid Report political blog (2000–2014).^[14]

From February 2014 to February 2015, Reid hosted her own MSNBC afternoon cable news show, The Reid Report.^[15] The show was canceled^[16] on February 19, 2015, and Reid was shifted to a new role as an MSNBC national correspondent.^[17] Beginning in May 2016, Reid hosted AM Joy, a political weekend-morning talk show on MSNBC, and was a frequent substitute for other MSNBC hosts, including Chris Hayes and Rachel Maddow. As of 2018, Reid's morning show on Saturdays averaged nearly one million weekly viewers.^[8]

Reid is the author of the book Fracture: Barack Obama, the Clintons, and the Racial Divide, published by HarperCollins on September 8, 2015.^{[18][19]} In 2015, Reid gave the inaugural Ida B. Wells lecture at Wake Forest University's Anna Julia Cooper Center.^[13]

In 2017, Reid ranked fourth among Twitter's top tweeted news outlets and most tweeted journalist at each outlet.^[20] The Daily Dot credited her in August of that year with coining the term KHive for supporters of Kamala Harris.^[21]

In July 2020, MSNBC announced that Reid would host The ReidOut, a new Washington-based weeknight commentary show in the 7 p.m. Eastern time slot vacated by the March 2020 retirement of Hardball host Chris Matthews,^[6] making her cable's first Black female primetime anchor.^{[22][23]} Reid also teaches a Syracuse University class in Manhattan exploring race, gender, and the media.^[8]

PANELISTS

CONGRESSWOMAN SHEILA JACKSON LEE

Congresswoman Sheila Jackson Lee is an influential and forceful voice in our nation's capital. She is serving her thirteenth term in the United States House of Representatives, representing Texas' 18th Congressional District of Texas, which is centered in Houston. Considered by many as the "Voice of Reason", she is dedicated to upholding the Constitutional rights of all people. She sits on three Congressional Committees – a senior member of the House Committees on the Judiciary, Homeland Security, and appointed by the leadership as a Member of the crucial Budget Committee. Importantly, the congresswoman chairs the Judiciary Subcommittee for Crime, Terrorism, Homeland Security.

Congresswoman Sheila Jackson Lee is the author of H.Res. 398, the first congressional legislative action in history recognizing and condemning the Tulsa-Greenwood Race Massacre of 1921. On June 18, 2020, she introduced H.R. 7232, the "Juneteenth National Independence Day Act," the first bill ever to be introduced in Congress to establish Juneteenth as a federal holiday. One day short of the date of the original bill's introduction, President Joseph Biden signed, the Senate companion bill to Congresswoman Jackson Lee's, legislation making Juneteenth a Federal Holiday on June 18, 2021.

Congresswoman Sheila Jackson Lee was named by 'Congressional Quarterly' as one of the 50 most effective Members of Congress and the 'U.S. News and World Report' named her as one of the 10 most influential legislators in the U.S. House of Representatives. The Center for Effective Lawmaking has ranked Congresswoman Sheila Jackson Lee the sixth most effective Democratic lawmakers in the United States House of Representatives.

WHITNEY DOW

Whitney Dow, born in 1961, is a documentary filmmaker, producer, and director.^[1] He is best known for Two Towns of Jasper (co-directed by Marco Williams), a film about the murder of a black man committed by three white men in Jasper, Texas, which received a George Foster Peabody Award^[2] and an Alfred I. duPont-Columbia University Award.^[3] Two Towns of Jasper was broadcast on the PBS documentary series POV in 2003. The film and the directors were featured on The Oprah Winfrey Show and Nightline and the film was the catalyst for a live town hall meeting, "America in Black and White," anchored by Ted Koppel.^[4]

In 2014, Dow launched Whiteness Project with POV. Whiteness Project is an online "interactive investigation" into the experiences of white Americans. The interactive project received national attention and coverage from accredited news sources like NPR,^[5] New York^[6] and CBS.^[7] The first installment, "Inside the White/Caucasian Box," is a collection of 21 interviews filmed in Buffalo, New York, that includes data enforcing or refuting the interviewees' statements.^[8]

Dow had directed more than 200 shorts and commercials by 1998, when he co-founded Two Tone Productions, a company that creates films addressing issues of race.^[9] In addition to directing films such as Two Towns of Jasper, I Sit Where I Want, Unfinished Country and When the Drum is Beating, he has also produced numerous films including Freedom Summer, Banished (film) and Toots (film). Dow's work has also been exhibited at the Metropolitan Museum of Art, the Museum of Modern Art (MoMA) and the Smithsonian Institution.^[10]

ROBIN RUE SIMMONS

Robin Rue Simmons (born March 12, 1976) is an American former politician and advocate for reparations for African Americans.

Simmons was born and raised in the largely segregated 5th Ward of Evanston, Illinois.

From 2017 to 2021, Simmons served as the alderman of 5th Ward. As alderman, she led the passage of the United States' first government-funded reparations legislation. The local reparations initiative is being funded by the first $10 million of adult-use cannabis sales tax revenue collected by the City. The first stage of the reparations program is focused on homeownership. After leaving office,[8] Rue Simmons was selected to continue as a member of the City Council's Reparations Committee.

Simmons now serves as the Executive Director of the not-for-profit FirstRepair, which "advocates for local reparations, nationally." She also serves on the National African American Reparations Commission.

ERIKA ROSE ALEXANDER

Erika Rose Alexander (born November 19, 1969) is an American actress, writer, producer, entrepreneur and activist best known for her roles as Pam Tucker on the NBC sitcom The Cosby Show (1990–1992), and Maxine Shaw on the FOX sitcom Living Single (1993–1998).^[1] She has won numerous awards for her work on Living Single, including two NAACP Image Awards for Outstanding Actress in a Comedy Series.^[2] Her film credits include The Long Walk Home (1990), 30 Years to Life (2001), Déjà Vu (2006) and Get Out (2017).

Alexander was born in Winslow, Arizona and raised in Flagstaff, Arizona until the age of eleven, when she and her family moved to Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.^[3] She is one of six children born to Robert and Sammie Alexander, a school teacher and children's book author. Alexander graduated from Philadelphia High School for Girls.^[4]

After graduating from high school, Alexander enrolled in a six-week acting class at the New Freedom Theatre.^[4] During the fifth week, Alexander got a major role in her first movie.^[4] Alexander made her film debut appearing in the independent drama My Little Girl in 1986.^[4] In 1989, Alexander played the role of Hidimbi in Peter Brook's miniseries adaptation of The Mahabharata.^[4] She got her big break starring opposite Whoopi Goldberg in the 1990 civil rights epic drama film The Long Walk Home.

Alexander performed in the play The Forbidden City with Gloria Foster, who then talked about her with her friend, Camille Cosby, wife of Bill Cosby.^{[4][5]} She later was cast as Pam Tucker on the NBC sitcom The Cosby Show starring from 1990 to series finale in 1992. Alexander later went to star in the ABC comedy-drama series Going to Extremes, which centered on a group of American students at a medical school on a fictitious Caribbean island named Jantique.^[6] The series was canceled after one season in 1993.

In 1993, Alexander began starring as the acid-tongued attorney Maxine Shaw in the Fox sitcom Living Single, a role she played for five years to 1998.^[7] For this role, she won two NAACP Image Award for Outstanding Actress in a Comedy Series in 1996 and 1998. She appeared in Toni Braxton's music video for "You're Makin' Me High" in 1996. In 1998, she starred opposite Cicely Tyson in the CBS miniseries Mama Flora's Family with her former Living Single co-star Queen Latifah, based on novel by Alex Haley,^[8] and well as appeared in the drama film 54. In 2001, she starred in the comedy film 30 Years to Life receiving Black Reel Award for Best Independent Actress for her performance.^[9]

In 2002, Alexander returned to television playing probation officer Dee Mulhern in the Showtime drama series Street Time, which ran for two seasons. She had recurring roles in Judging Amy, In Plain Sight, Low Winter Sun and Let's Stay Together. Alexander also guest-starred on Law & Order: Special Victims Unit, Half and Half, ER, CSI: Crime Scene Investigation, Criminal Minds, House, Suits and Grey's Anatomy. From 2012 to 2015, she had a recurring role as Carol Larabee, Mike and Vanessa's neighbor, in the ABC comedy series Last Man Standing. Tisha Campbell-Martin replaced her in this role in the seventh season.^[10]

Alexander has appeared in a number of films in 2000s and 2010s.
