The Honorable Dan Newhouse
U.S. House of Representatives
504 Cannon House Office Building
Washington, DC 20515

Dear Colleague:

Pursuant to House Rule 25, clause 5(d)(2), the Committee on Ethics hereby approves your and your spouse's proposed trip to Ireland and the United Kingdom,¹ scheduled for August 11 to 19, 2024, sponsored by Aspen Institute, Inc., and Carnegie Corporation of New York. We note that this trip includes three days at your personal expense.

You must complete a Member/Officer Post-Travel Disclosure Form and file it, together with a Sponsor Post-Travel Disclosure Form completed by the trip sponsor, with the Clerk of the House within 15 days after your return from travel. As part of that filing, you are also required to attach a copy of this letter and both the Traveler and Primary Trip Sponsor Forms (including attachments) you previously submitted to the Committee in seeking pre-approval for this trip. You must also report all travel expenses totaling more than $480 from a single source on the "Travel" schedule of your annual Financial Disclosure Statement covering this calendar year. Finally, Travel Regulation § 404(d) also requires you to keep a copy of all request forms and supporting information provided to the Committee for three subsequent Congresses from the date of travel.

Because the trip may involve meetings with foreign government representatives, we note that House Members may accept, under the Foreign Gifts and Decorations Act (FGDA), gifts "of minimal value [currently $480] tendered as a souvenir or mark of courtesy" by a foreign government. Any tangible gifts valued in excess of minimal value received from a foreign government must, within 60 days of acceptance, be disclosed on a Form for Disclosing Gifts from Foreign Governments and either turned over to the Clerk of the House, or, with the written approval of the Committee, retained for official use.

¹ Please be aware that the Committee's review of the proposed trip does not extend to either the security situation in the destination countries or security related to foreign travel in general. We recommend you contact the Office of House Security (OHS) for a safety and security briefing prior to your departure. OHS may be reached at (202) 226-2044 or ohsstaff@mail.house.gov. House travelers should also register for the U.S. State Department's Smart Traveler Enrollment Program at <https://step.state.gov>.

If you have any further questions, please contact the Committee's Office of Advice and Education at extension 5-7103.

Sincerely,

20. Rep. Greg Stanton, House Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure
21. Rep. Susan Wild, House Committee on Foreign Affairs

Question 15-B-1: Detail the cost per day of meals (approximate cost may be provided.):

The daily cost of meals is $150. This amount reflects the cost of lunch, breaks and dinner.

The accommodation cost includes breakfast. The daily cost of meals is $9 over per diem in Dublin and $47 over per diem in Belfast. Food costs increases are the reason behind these expenses, but it is a cost that is reasonable and necessary.

Question 18: Total Lodging Expenses per Participant

The room rate in Dublin is $449 for the nights of Aug. 11, 12; $509 for night of Aug. 15.

Members of Congress begin landing in Dublin at 4:35 am on Aug. 11. Check-in is not available until 3 pm. An early check-in fee was paid to guarantee participants landing in Dublin before 2 pm could check-in upon arrival, prepare for meetings on Aug. 11, and for security purposes. The room rate in Belfast is $315 for the nights of Aug. 13, 14.

August 10-16, 2024 | Dublin, Ireland and Belfast – Northern Ireland, United Kingdom

AGENDA

SATURDAY, AUGUST 10:

U.S. participants depart the U.S. throughout the day.

SUNDAY, AUGUST 11 (Overnight in Dublin):

Rep. Dan Newhouse and Joan Galvin depart Yakima, Washington, at 1:23 pm on Alaska Airlines 2001

U.S. participants arrive in Dublin.

11:30 AM – 1:30 PM: Working Lunch

5 – 6:30 PM: Fireside Chat

The conference will open with a tour of the horizon of strategic challenges now facing the United States, with a particular focus on the challenges posed by China and Russia to a U.S.-led rules-based international order. As president and CEO of the U.S. Russia Foundation and as the former director of the Kennan Institute, the premier U.S. center for advanced research on Russia and Eurasia, Matthew Rojansky will address the new security landscape shaped by Russia's military aggression against Ukraine, and together with Dmitri Alperovitch, Silverado Policy Accelerator Chairman, will discuss growing Chinese capabilities and boldness and technological change. A former United States Trade Representative and Deputy National Security Advisor for International Economic Affairs in the Obama and Clinton Administrations respectively, Michael Froman will address challenges to U.S. leadership in global trade and financial markets, and why such continued leadership is a vital U.S. national interest in the twenty-first century.

Speakers:

Michael Froman, President, The Council on Foreign Relations

Dmitri Alperovitch, Chairman, Silverado Policy Accelerator

Matthew Rojansky, President and CEO, The U.S.-Russia Foundation (moderator)

7 – 9 PM: Working Dinner

Seating is arranged to expose participants to a diverse range of views and provide the opportunity for a meaningful exchange of ideas. Scholars and lawmakers are rotated daily. Discussions will focus on the U.S. relations with China and Russia and, in particular, the role U.S. lawmakers play in shaping the global security landscape.

MONDAY, AUGUST 12 (Overnight in Dublin):

9 – 9:15 AM: Introduction and Framework of the Conference

This conference is organized into roundtable conversations, working lunches, and pre-dinner remarks. This segment will highlight how the conference will be conducted, how those with questions will be recognized, and how responses will be timed to allow for as much engagement as possible.

Speaker:

Charlie Dent, Vice President, Aspen Institute;
Executive Director, Congressional Program

9:15 – 11:15 AM: Roundtable Discussion

Russia and China's Foreign Policy Traditions and Perceptions of the U.S.

The foreign policies of Russia and China are deeply rooted in historical experiences and mythologies which shape their current objectives. Russia's approach to foreign policy is heavily influenced by Soviet-era and other experiences of territorial expansion, conflict, and a desire to reclaim perceived lost influence, particularly in Eastern Europe and Central Asia. China's foreign policy is guided by its belief that a Sino-Centric Asia and, perhaps, a Sino-Centric Afro-Eurasia is a natural, inevitable, and positive development. This ambition is shaped by China's historical primacy and its experience of humiliation beginning in the mid-19th Century—a rise/fall/rise story that stirs patriotic passions and is fueling a new drive for hegemony. Both nations believe they face existential threats from the U.S. and the West.

Speakers will address the following questions:

- How have historical experiences shaped the current foreign policies of Russia and China, and what are the key doctrines influencing their international strategies?
- In what ways do the historical narratives of national identity and sovereignty in Russia and China influence their foreign policy decisions today?
- How do concepts of power differ in the foreign policy traditions of Russia and China? What historical events have contributed to these differences?

- Can similarities between Russian and Chinese foreign policy be attributed to shared historical experiences of Western intervention? How do these experiences/perceptions continue to affect their policies?
- What are the historical roots of the strategic partnership between Russia and China? How have their respective foreign policy goals converged or diverged over time?

Speakers:

Robert Daly, Director, Kissinger Institute on China and the United States, the Wilson Center

Sergey Radchenko, Wilson E. Schmidt Distinguished Professor, the Johns Hopkins University

11:15 – 11:30 AM: Break

11:30 AM – 1:10 PM: Roundtable Discussion

Domestic Drivers of Contemporary Foreign Policy

Domestic politics in Russia and China play pivotal roles in shaping their respective foreign policies. In Russia, President Vladimir Putin's consolidation of power has been closely tied to a foreign policy that emphasizes national revival and geopolitical strength, often using international engagements to bolster his domestic standing amid economic challenges and political dissent. In China, the Communist Party under Xi Jinping has leveraged foreign policy successes to enhance its legitimacy and justify its near total control of society, presenting China both as a rejuvenated global power and as a victim of Western hegemony and unrelenting American attack. Both governments use foreign policy as a tool to consolidate internal power, manage national identity, and address internal pressures—whether they stem from economic needs, regional stability, or the demands of national prestige.

Speakers will address the following questions:

- How do Putin's domestic political needs influence Russia's aggressive postures in Eastern Europe and the Middle East?
- What is Xi Jinping's domestic agenda and how does it shape his vision of China's global role?
- How do internal economic pressures in both countries drive foreign policy decisions, especially in energy and trade partnerships?
- What role does public opinion play in shaping the foreign policy choices of Russia and China, and how do their governments manage nationalistic sentiments?
- How might changes in domestic political stability in either Russia or China affect their foreign policy in the near future?

Speakers:

Steve Tsang, Director, School of Oriental & African Studies (SOAS), University of London, China Institute

Sam Greene, Director for Democratic Resilience, the Center for European Policy Analysis

1:10 – 2:30 PM: Working Lunch and Q&A with Paschal Donohoe, Minister for Public Expenditure and Reform of Ireland

Discussion continues between members of Congress and experts on foreign policy traditions and their domestic drivers with Robert Daly, Sergey Radchenko, Steve Tsang, Sam Greene, and Minister Paschal Donohoe. Members of Congress met with Paschal Donohoe, Minister for Public Expenditure and Reform of Ireland. Minister Donohoe is responsible for delivering targeted public spending. He also oversees the implementation of the National Development Plan, drives the program of public service reform, and has a key role in decisions made across the Irish Government.

3 – 5 PM: Individual Discussions

Scholars will be available to meet individually with members of Congress for in-depth discussion of ideas raised in the morning sessions, including Robert Daly, Sergey Radchenko, Steve Tsang, and Sam Greene.

6 – 7 PM: Fireside Chat

Rethinking Ireland's Foreign and Security Policy: Process and Substance

This discussion will encompass Ireland's traditional stance of military neutrality while exploring how to enhance its role in international peacekeeping, conflict resolution, and cooperative security frameworks. It will also touch on Ireland's contributions to the European Union's Common Security and Defense Policy, expanding partnerships with international organizations like the United Nations, and investing in advanced defense capabilities.

Speaker:

Louise Richardson, President, Carnegie Corporation of New York

Charlie Dent, Vice President, Aspen Institute;

Executive Director, Congressional Program (moderator)

7:15 – 9 PM: Working Dinner

Seating is arranged to expose participants to a diverse range of views and provide the opportunity for a meaningful exchange of ideas. Scholars and lawmakers are rotated daily. Discussions will focus on Ireland's foreign and security policy and its partnership with the United States.

TUESDAY, AUGUST 13 (Overnight in Belfast):

7 – 8:30 AM: Breakfast

9 – 11:10 AM: Roundtable Discussion:

What Do They Want? Xi's and Putin's Global Visions

Vladimir Putin talks about Russia's assertive and aggressive foreign policy in terms of resisting Western hegemony and encroachment into the post-Soviet region, which he considers a sphere of privileged influence for Russia. Xi Jinping is working with Russia and a growing list of other partners, many in the global south, to stand up an alternate set of global institutions, coalitions, and values that can serve as an alternative to nations that don't want their choices shaped by the West. This emerging architecture will be led by China and will stress development rights and national sovereignty. Both countries share core interests in countering U.S. primacy and promoting what they call multipolarity. For the United States, this Sino-Russian alignment poses complex challenges across the spectrum of security, economic competitiveness, and diplomacy.

Speakers will address the following questions:

- How do Putin's and Xi's strategies for global influence align, and where do they diverge, particularly in their approaches to the United States and Europe?
- Does the personal relationship between the two leaders matter? Is the "friendship with no limits" for real?
- Where do the Putin/Xi visions for global order succeed and where are they failing?
- Do Putin and Xi aim to overthrow the global order, or to challenge it with new alternatives while using it to their advantage when they can?
- How long can either leader be expected to retain power in their respective systems, and will the relationship change significantly in a post-Putin/Xi future?

Speakers:

Elizabeth Economy, Senior Fellow, Hoover Institution, Stanford University
Anna Arutunyan, Associate Director, Mayak Intelligence

11:10 – 11:25 AM: Break

11:25 AM – 1:10 PM: Roundtable Discussion

Geo-Economics: Trade, Technology and Finance as Instruments of Statecraft

Russia and China are both urgently focused on enhancing their economic competitiveness and responding to U.S. economic pressures and sanctions. Russia, heavily reliant on commodity exports, particularly oil and gas, has responded to Western sanctions with efforts to develop self-sufficiency in critical technologies and diversify its economic partners, especially through tighter trade, technology and investment bonds with China. China has become the world's leading trading and lending nation and is setting up new financial institutions like the Asian Infrastructure Investment Bank, the Belt and Road, the BRICS Bank, the Global Security Initiative, and the Cross-border Interbank Payment System (CIPS) as an alternative to The Society for Worldwide Interbank Financial Telecommunication (SWIFT), establishing itself as an essential economic partner throughout much of the world even as it decouples and insulates itself from the West. Its geo-economic strategy is a key component of its order building and its attempts to escape dollar dominance and internationalize its currency, the RMB.

Speakers will address the following questions:

- How effective are U.S. economic sanctions in limiting Russia's and China's global economic influence and technological advancements?
- How can Russia and China leverage their strategic partnership to mitigate the impact of U.S. economic pressures and enhance their technological competitiveness?
- Has Russia accepted economic dependence on China as a long-term cost of hostility to the West?
- In which industries does China pose the most significant challenge to U.S. technological leadership? How should the U.S. respond?
- How will Russia's focus on developing self-sufficiency in critical technologies alter its economic and strategic relationships with both the West and China?
- What potential global impacts could arise from increased cooperation between Russia and China in high technology sectors, particularly in areas like artificial intelligence and telecommunications?

Speakers:

Yasheng Huang, Professor, Sloan School of Management, Massachusetts Institute of Technology

Chris Weafer, CEO, Macro-Advisory

1:10 – 2 PM: Working Lunch

Discussion continues between members of Congress and scholars on Xi's and Putin's global visions and geo-economics with Elizabeth Economy, Anna Arutunyan, Yasheng Huang, and Chris Weafer.

2:20 – 4:45 PM: Travel from Dublin to Belfast

7 – 9 PM: Working Dinner with U.K. Government Officials

Seating is arranged to expose participants to a diverse range of views and provide the opportunity for a meaningful exchange of ideas. Scholars and lawmakers are rotated daily. Discussions today will focus on President Xi's and Putin's global visions, the dynamic of their economic partnership, and the U.S. role in the current geopolitical circumstances. Fleur Anderson, MP, Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Northern Ireland, Phillip Brett, MLA, Chair of the Economy Committee in the Assembly, and John O'Dowd, Infrastructure Minister, will join.

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 14 (Overnight in Belfast):

6 – 8:30 AM: Breakfast

9 – 11:15 AM: Roundtable Discussion

Security Concepts and Strategies

Russia's military doctrine is heavily oriented towards rapid response and the use of overwhelming force to secure its borders and assert dominance in what it considers its sphere of influence, notably in Eastern Europe. This includes modernizing its nuclear arsenal and hybrid warfare capabilities, which directly challenges NATO and U.S. interests in Europe. China's focus is on power projection in the Western Pacific, where its Navy (the world's largest) and militarized Coast Guard and fishing fleet is concentrated. China's rocket force is also deployed for a Taiwan contingency, but its ambitions are not limited to the near seas. China now has a nuclear triad, hypersonic weapons more advanced than those of the U.S., and it appears to be building toward nuclear parity with America. This buildup supports the Xi claims that China needs a military "commensurate with its global status" and that Asians alone should provide Asian security. Both of these phrases are code. But for what?

Speakers will address the following questions:

- How do Russia and China's military strategies challenge NATO, U.S. military forces in the Indo-Pacific, and the American alliance system?
- In what ways have joint military exercises between Russia and China enhanced their interoperability, and what does this mean for U.S. military strategy in Europe and Asia?
- How significant is the threat of coordinated military action by Russia and China in a hypothetical conflict scenario involving the United States, and how should the U.S. adjust its defense posture in response?
- What technologies or capabilities have Russia and China developed that could undermine U.S. military advantages, and how can the U.S. counter these developments?
- What are the implications of the emerging nuclear triad for American strategic forces?

Speakers:

Matt Turpin, Visiting Fellow, the Hoover Institution, Stanford University

Andrew Monaghan, Global Fellow, Kennan Institute, the Wilson Center

11:15 – 11:25 AM: Break

11:25 AM – 1:10 PM: Roundtable Discussion U.S. Allies and Partners in Europe and Asia

As Russia, China, Iran, North Korea and other states strengthen their partnerships, and as China develops its claim to lead the Global South, the question of how well the United States is aligned with partners in Europe and Asia has come to the fore. The resilience of the alliance system will be tested as Russia and China attempt to drive wedges between South Korea and Japan and to court European nations which are not as unified in their attitudes toward China as the United States might wish, especially in the commercial arena. The alliance system may also come under pressure due to political change within the United States itself and decide to build their strategic autonomy rather than rely on American guarantees. Simultaneous conflicts in Europe, the Middle East, and Asia, furthermore, could cast doubts on America's capacities among its partners. What are the major concerns of U.S. allies and what can be done to allay them?

Speakers will address the following questions:

- To what extent are countries of strategic concern to the United States coordinating their strategies? Are we seeing the emergence of two great blocks, or are we in danger of connecting dots that should remain unconnected?
- How do Russia and China leverage organizations like BRICS and the Shanghai Cooperation Organization to expand their influence and what are the implications for U.S. foreign policy?
- How do partners in Europe and Asia assess the goals and capabilities of China and Russia? Are there key gaps in their perceptions and those of the U.S.?
- Faced with increasing, uncertain, and multi-faceted threats from China and Russia, how are our allies' asks of the United States shifting?

Speakers:

Bonnie Glaser, Managing Director, Indo-Pacific Program of the German Marshall Fund

Oksana Antonenko, Global Fellow, Kennan Institute of the Wilson Center

1:10 – 2 PM: Working Lunch

Discussion continues between members of Congress and scholars on military doctrines and the U.S. and Chinese approaches to Europe, Asia, and Global South with Matt Turpin, Andrew Monaghan, Bonnie Glaser, and Oksana Antonenko.

2 – 5 PM: Historical Perspective: Conflict Resolution in Northern Ireland

Participants will join a privately led overview by vehicle of historically relevant sites in Belfast. This tour around Belfast offers an immersive journey into the city's rich and complex past, particularly focusing on the turbulent period known as The Troubles. The tour will be guided by knowledgeable locals who provide personal insights and firsthand accounts of the conflict between the Protestant and Catholic communities. Members of Congress will see significant landmarks, including the Peace Walls, political murals, and key sites of historical events, providing a balanced perspective on the cultural and political landscape.

7 – 9 PM: Working Dinner

Seating is arranged to expose participants to a diverse range of views and provide the opportunity for a meaningful exchange of ideas. Scholars and lawmakers are rotated daily. Discussions will focus on military doctrines, their role in shaping foreign policy, and U.S. approaches to Europe, Asia, and the Global South.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 15 (Overnight in Dublin):

6 – 7:30 AM: Breakfast

8 – 10:15 AM: Roundtable Discussion:
U.S. Policy Toward China, Russia, and Their Partnership

The guiding question of this conference is to what degree Chinese and Russian strategies are coordinated and to what degrees the United States should deal with them jointly and severally. Are American diplomatic, military, and economic resources, including U.S. federal bureaucracies, structured and resourced to manage a protracted challenge from a Sino-Russian entente? This final discussion will aim at defining the framework through which American legislators should view great power competition and the emphasis they should give to its military, diplomatic, financial, order-building, and soft power aspects.

The speaker will address the following questions:

- What are the lessons from past U.S. engagement and containment policies towards both Russia and China? What lessons apply to today's environment of intense strategic competition?
- How can the U.S. and its allies effectively respond to the military and economic partnerships forming between China and Russia?
- In what ways can the U.S. leverage its technological and economic strengths to maintain a competitive edge in the face of growing Sino-Russian cooperation?
- What strategies should the U.S. adopt to manage its relations with countries caught between U.S. and Sino-Russian interests?
- Do any agencies of the U.S. Government need to be re-conceived or re-structured to meet these challenges?
- What are the costs of over- and under-emphasizing a Great Powers framework for American foreign policy?

Speaker:

Thomas Graham, Distinguished Fellow, the Council on Foreign Relations

10:15 – 10:25 AM: Break

10:25 AM – 12 PM: Policy Reflections for Members of Congress

This time is set aside for members of Congress to reflect on what they have learned during the conference and discuss their views on implications for U.S. policy. Drawing on the full range of conversations throughout the week, members will seek to identify for each other the most promising takeaways for the United States policy process, with a special focus on opportunities for bipartisan cooperation. This is a members-only conversation.

12 – 1 PM: Working Lunch

1 – 4 PM: Travel from Belfast to Dublin

4 – 4:45 PM: Members of Congress Only Meet with Charlie Flanagan, TD, Chair of the Joint Committee on Foreign Affairs and Defence, at Dáil Éireann

Participants travel to Dáil Éireann, the Lower House of Irish Parliament (The Oireachtas). The Oireachtas is the only body that has the power to make laws. The Oireachtas consists of a bicameral chamber and the President of Ireland. The two Houses of The Oireachtas include a Lower House, Dáil Éireann, and an Upper House, Seanad Éireann. The Irish Constitution states that the Government must answer to Dáil Éireann. Members will meet with Charlie Flanagan, TD, Chair (Cathaoirleach) of the Joint Committee on Foreign Affairs and Defence.

4 – 4:45 PM: Congressional Family Members Tour Dáil Éireann and then Return to Hotel

4:45 – 5:20 PM: Members of Congress Only Tour Dáil Éireann and then Return to Hotel

7:30 – 9:30 PM: Working Dinner

Seating is arranged to expose participants to a diverse range of views and provide the opportunity for a meaningful exchange of ideas. Scholars and lawmakers are rotated daily. Discussions will focus on U.S. foreign policy toward China and Russia and members' takeaways from the conference.

The Honorable Dan Newhouse

U.S. House of Representatives
Washington, DC 20515-0306

Dear Representative Newhouse,

I would like to invite you and Joan to our bipartisan, bicameral congressional conference on Axis of Complexity: Chinese and Russian Foreign Policy in Dublin, Ireland and Belfast, Northern Ireland, August 10-17, 2024, including travel dates. These conference spots fill up quickly, so please RSVP as soon as possible. This invitation does not guarantee your participation in the conference.

Through roundtable sessions and site visits, members will explore Chinese and Russian perspectives on their foreign policy priorities, domestic politics, national narratives, and Sino-Russian geopolitical partnership and the United States' response to it, among other topics. Members and experts will also spend time examining the history of the Northern Ireland conflict and both historical and contemporary lessons related to Ireland's development as a non-NATO European Union member. Dublin and Belfast offer the unique opportunity for members to connect with experts from the United States, Europe, and Asia while gaining ground truth related to internal and international conflict, geopolitical neutrality, and economic development through European integration. The agenda for the conference is forthcoming.

Attendance is by invitation only, no outside observers, no lobbyists, no congressional staff, and no media. All conference sessions are off-the-record. No foreign governments are accepted to fund the Aspen Institute Congressional Program. As required by the Senate and House ethics rules, we will provide congressional participants with ethics private sponsor forms completed and signed.

Travel expenses, including business class airfare, meals and lodging will be paid for by the Aspen Institute; no expenses for entertainment or recreation are paid for in compliance with ethics rules.

The Congressional Program is part of the Aspen Institute, Inc. a nonprofit organization founded in 1950. The Congressional Program was created to promote leadership on public policy by bringing together legislators from both political parties with internationally renowned scholars for high level discussions and analysis. Since our program's inception, more than 523 members of Congress have participated in the 156 domestic and international conferences.

We hope you can join us for this important conference.

Sincerely,

Charlie Dent
