Dear Representative Dexter,

The American Lands Project (ALP) appreciates your interest in the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge. The 19.6-million-acre Arctic National Wildlife Refuge is an exceptional and unique landscape. Alaska Native people have been stewards of this land for centuries and continue to depend heavily on the region's subsistence resources. The Arctic Refuge supports a diverse array of wildlife, including polar bears, caribou, musk ox, and hundreds of species of migratory birds.

Land use policy for the Arctic Refuge has shifted significantly over the years, ranging from proposed restricted-use designations to authorized energy development. We believe a fact-finding trip to the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge would provide you a valuable opportunity to see and experience first-hand this remote Arctic landscape and better understand the dynamic human and natural systems at play in this area.

We would like to invite you and an allowed guest to join ALP for a trip to the Arctic Refuge from August 16th to August 22nd, 2026 – on the ground in the Arctic Refuge from August 17th to August 21st. The trip will be fully sponsored by ALP, including all travel, lodging, and meals. We will follow-up with the formal 2026 trip itinerary and will assist with the required documentation for submission to the House Committee on Ethics.

Thank you for your consideration. As with all trip guests, we would like to schedule a virtual meeting with you and your staff to share additional details about the trip, provide recommendations for preparation, and answer any questions you may have.

Sincerely,

Natalie Smink
Education & Trips Coordinator

American Lands Project

Arctic National Wildlife Refuge 2026 Fact-Finding Trip Itinerary August 16 - 22, 2026

Mission Goals: A fact-finding trip to visit Alaska's North Slope and the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge (Arctic Refuge), and learn about the federal land-management framework, energy development history and current activity, wildlife and habitat conservation, landscape change, and Indigenous community engagement across these landscapes. Participants will have the opportunity to visit remote areas of the Arctic Refuge to gain firsthand knowledge of land-management frameworks, energy leasing and development, subsistence uses, and Arctic landscape changes, and to meet with local and Tribal stakeholders to learn more about regional policy issues. Members will examine firsthand the specific geography and communities affected by ongoing and prospective legislative decisions on Arctic public lands.

Relevance to Official Duties: Congress and the Administration play a significant role in Alaska's land and natural resources policy, including energy development and Indigenous affairs on the North Slope. As Members of Congress, Rep. Susie Lee (NV-03) and Rep. Maxine Dexter (OR-03) have legislative and oversight responsibilities concerning the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge and the broader North Slope. This fact-finding trip will educate the Members on the energy, tribal, and natural resource management issues related to the Arctic Refuge and North Slope. They will gain firsthand knowledge to inform their decisions on legislation, appropriations, amendments, and other congressional actions concerning the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge, the North Slope, and Alaska's federal public lands.

Location: The purpose of travel to Fairbanks, Alaska is to gain hands-on experience within the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge to educate Members on the landscape's history, ecology, management, and the Indigenous communities that depend on it. The American Lands Project will also take Members to Arctic Village, a Gwich'in community on the Refuge's southern border, to meet with local and Tribal community members. Locations will include the Refuge's Coastal Plain, basecamp sites accessible only by air taxi, and Arctic Village itself.

Members will be able to identify and distinguish tribal, state, and federal land ownership and management designations across the North Slope, and understand how those designations map onto conservation, resource development, research and subsistence uses. This map literacy is a prerequisite for informed legislative and appropriations decisions that vary by land designation (e.g., wilderness vs. multiple-use BLM lands vs. Alaska Native Corporation lands).

Participants will discuss how these changes have affected management for the Arctic Refuge over time.

Congress continues to legislate on the Refuge's status (e.g., Coastal Plain leasing provisions). This legislative history is important in allowing Members to evaluate proposed amendments, appropriations, or oversight questions related to the Refuge.

Presenter: Danielle Murray

Location: Base Camp - Spring Creek, Arctic National Wildlife Refuge, AK

*(All flight times and specific basecamp destinations in the Arctic Refuge are subject to change based on

- 3:30 p.m. – 6:00 p.m. Guided Hike to observe the Ecology and Landscape of the Southern Brooks Range

Members will observe a valley on the south side of the Brooks Range firsthand and learn its importance to the Porcupine Caribou Herd, which uses the valley as a migration corridor that extends north over Carter Pass and into the Canning River watershed as part of the longest land migration of any land mammal (1,500+ miles, spanning the Alaska-Yukon border), and to numerous other wildlife species. Participants will also learn how the health of the herd is managed across the U.S.-Canadian border, including the role of the Porcupine Caribou Management Board.

This hike takes the Members to an overlook of the Spring Creek valley which serves as a migration route for the Porcupine Caribou herd which travels to the Coastal Plain, or "1002 Area" — that is the subject of the Refuge's most active legislative and regulatory disputes, including congressionally mandated lease sales, to calve every year. Direct physical observation of the caribou migration route is fact-finding that cannot be replicated by a briefing alone, and is the basis for the Members' independent judgment on pending legislation, appropriations, and oversight affecting this specific unit of land.

Leaders: Danielle Murray, Natalie Smink, Jeffrey Gillespie

Location: Spring Creek, Arctic National Wildlife Refuge, AK*

- 6:00 p.m. – 7:30 p.m. Working Dinner Presentation and Discussion on North Slope Public Lands

ALP trip leader will present on the geologic and ecological differences across the three major public land units on Alaska's North Slope – the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge, the National Petroleum Reserve - Alaska (NPR-A), and State of Alaska land – and how these differences influence land management, as well as the distinct management structures and roles of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (Arctic Refuge), the Bureau of Land Management (NPR-A), and the State of Alaska (including Prudhoe Bay). Participants will discuss how each agency approaches management of the lands within their jurisdiction, and how that management is influenced by the land's geology and ecology.

These discussions will help inform any oversight of USFWS or BLM, and any appropriations or legislative decisions that treat these three units differently – a recurring feature of North Slope energy and conservation policy.

- 10:30 a.m. – 12:30 p.m. Presentation and Discussion of Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act (ANCSA)

ALP trip leader will present on the history and key elements of ANCSA (1971), which extinguished aboriginal land title claims in Alaska, divided the state into 12 regions based on shared Alaska Native heritage and interests, and created for-profit Alaska Native Corporations (ANCs) tasked with the social, cultural, and economic advancement of Alaska Native people (plus a 13th corporation for Alaska Natives no longer residing in the state). Participants will then have a discussion on ANCSA to become familiar with the ANCs active on the North Slope and how ANCSA differs from federal policy toward Indigenous nations and communities in the Lower 48.

ANCSA remains a subject of congressional oversight and periodic amendment. Understanding its history, and the relationships between the federal government and ANCs on the North Slope, is important for Members evaluating any legislation touching Alaska Native Corporations, land conveyances, or related federal programs.

- 12:30 p.m. - 1:30 p.m. Lunch

- 1:30 p.m. – 3:00 p.m. Presentation and Discussion of Alaska National Interest Lands Conservation Act (ANILCA)

Members will learn from a presentation given by ALP trip leaders about the history and landscape-shaping impact of ANILCA (1980), which designated most of Alaska's National Park Service units, wilderness areas, national wildlife refuges (including the Arctic Refuge), and national monuments, and established a priority for subsistence uses of fish and wildlife by rural residents. Participants will then discuss ANILCA's continuing influence on management of the Arctic Refuge and other Alaska public land units.

ANILCA is the foundational statute governing the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge

- 9:00 a.m. - 10:00 a.m. Presentation on Indigenous Arctic Communities

Members will learn about Indigenous community connections across the Alaskan Arctic and about discussions that have occurred between the Iñupiat and Gwich'in peoples regarding their roles in federal land management and development decisions.

This presentation informs Members' understanding of the trust responsibility and consultation obligations the federal government has established toward both peoples, relevant to any legislation or oversight affecting either community.

- 10:00 a.m. - 11:30 a.m. Presentation on Permafrost and Saltwater Intrusion

Members will learn about evidence of melting permafrost and saltwater intrusion from the coast into freshwater systems due to rising Arctic temperatures, trends in these impacts over time, effects on wildlife and North Slope communities, and how communities are adapting infrastructure and practices in response.

Climate-driven adaptation needs inform infrastructure, appropriations, and disaster-resilience decisions Members may vote on or oversee for North Slope communities.

Presenter: Danielle Murray

Location: Spring Creek, Arctic National Wildlife Refuge, AK*

- 11:30 a.m. - 1:00 p.m. Working Lunch Presentation on Subsistence

ALP trip leader and the guide will present on how subsistence use supports rural Alaskans, including the federal statutory definition: "the customary and traditional uses by rural Alaska residents of wild, renewable resources for such direct personal or family consumption as food, shelter, fuel, clothing, tools or transportation; the making and selling of handicraft articles... for barter or sharing for personal or family consumption; and for customary trade." Participants will then discuss the rural priority for subsistence resources and how subsistence-use data factors into federal refuge-management decisions.

The rural subsistence priority is a statutory framework Congress created and continues to oversee. Subsistence is one of the primary uses of public lands on the North Slope. It is an important component of many pieces of legislation related to federal lands in Alaska. Understanding its real-world application is valuable for Members when they consider future amendments, appropriations, or agency-oversight questions.

- 2:00 p.m. - 3:00 p.m. Basecamp Relocation and In-Air Discussion with Pilot on Small Aviation Business and Weather Impacts

Members will hear directly from a North Slope air-taxi operator about recent weather events, wildfire impacts on aviation, recreational use of the Refuge, and changes observed over the past 20 years that are reshaping his business operations.

This time interacting with an air-taxi operator will provide Members a firsthand, small-business perspective on climate and land-use change in rural Alaska and on the aviation infrastructure the Refuge and surrounding communities depend on — relevant

- 5:00 p.m. - 6:00 p.m. Working Dinner Presentation on North Slope Borough

Using maps, Members will learn the size and location of the North Slope Borough's eight communities (Anaktuvuk Pass, Atkasuk, Kaktovik, Nuiqsut, Point Hope, Point Lay, Utqiagvik, and Wainwright), home to roughly 11,000 permanent residents, with Utqiagvik (formerly Barrow) serving as the Borough seat of government.

Understanding local government structure and community scale is foundational for any federal program — revenue sharing, infrastructure, or subsistence management — affecting these communities that Members may fund or oversee.

- 10:30 a.m. - 11:30 a.m. Presentation on History of Arctic Oil and Gas Lease Sales

Members will learn the history and process of oil and gas lease sales in the Arctic, including which areas are open for leasing, how tracts are selected, and how sales are conducted — including the March 2026 NPR-A lease sale and the June 5, 2026 Arctic National Wildlife Refuge lease sale. Reviewing maps, Members will understand where lease tracts from the June 5, 2026 lease sale are in relation to their camp locations.

Members will benefit from understanding the federal oil and gas leasing process and current status for the Arctic landscapes to better inform decision-making when addressing energy development legislation, funding and oversight activities.

Presenters: Danielle Murray, Natalie Smink

Location: Base Camp - Junjik River, Arctic National Wildlife Refuge, AK

- 11:30 a.m. - 12:30 p.m. Working Lunch Discussion and Observation of Melting Permafrost

Members will review the impacts of thawing permafrost on communities and wildlife, and view physical examples near basecamp of slumping surface soils, changing water chemistry, and shifts in the local plant community due to rising temperatures. Participants will discuss recent scientific studies on changing Arctic conditions and their global implications.

Direct physical observation of climate impacts, paired with current research, supports Members' climate-adaptation and infrastructure related legislative and oversight work.

Presenters: Danielle Murray, Natalie Smink, Jeffrey Gillespie

- 12:30 p.m. - 2:30 p.m. Guided Hike to Observe Arctic Wildlife and Ecology

Members will observe wildlife and plants firsthand and discuss how natural systems function in this Arctic tundra landscape, including the Refuge's use by migratory birds, caribou, polar bears, and other wildlife. Members will also observe Arctic vegetation and learn how increasing temperatures and changing weather patterns are altering plant dispersal patterns and causing certain vegetation types to encroach northward.

This hike provides Members with a direct observation of species and habitat subject to Refuge-management decisions they oversee through appropriations and any Refuge-specific legislation.

Leaders: Jeffrey Gillespie, Natalie Smink, Danielle Murray

Location: Junjik River Valley, Arctic National Wildlife Refuge, AK

- 2:30 p.m. - 5:00 p.m. Break

*(All flight times and specific basecamp destinations in the Arctic Refuge are subject to change based on weather)

- 5:00 p.m. – 6:30 p.m. Working Dinner Presentation on Arctic Caribou Herds

Members will learn about the major caribou herds of the North Slope located outside the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge, with a focus on the Western Arctic Caribou Herd (WACH). The presentation will cover current population data and trends, management history, and the structure and role of the WACH Working Group (subsistence users, hunters, reindeer herders, guides, transporters, and conservationists, with agency biologists and resource managers advising). Participants will discuss how this collaborative model compares to the Porcupine Caribou Herd management discussed earlier in the week.

Comparing WACH's collaborative, multi-stakeholder management model to the Porcupine Caribou Herd/Coastal Plain discussion gives Members a concrete basis for evaluating co-management and appropriations approaches for caribou herds under different jurisdictional and development pressures.

- 8:00 a.m. – 9:00 a.m. Working Breakfast Presentation on the Trans-Alaska Pipeline

ALP trip leader will educate Members on the history of the $8 billion Trans-Alaska Pipeline, authorized by President Nixon in 1973 — its construction, its role in North Slope development, and its role in catalyzing the Alaska Permanent Fund.

Pipeline infrastructure policy and its historical link to the Permanent Fund revenue-sharing model are relevant to any federal energy-infrastructure or mineral-revenue distribution legislation Members consider.

Presenters: Danielle Murray, Natalie Smink

Location: Base Camp - Junjik River, Arctic National Wildlife Refuge, AK

- 9:00 a.m. – 10:00 a.m. Presentation on the Alaska Permanent Fund

Members will learn about the Alaska Permanent Fund, created in 1976 via state constitutional amendment, which requires at least 25% of mineral lease rentals, royalties, sale proceeds, federal mineral revenue-sharing payments, and bonuses to be deposited into the Fund, and which distributes dividends to Alaska residents.

Revenues from activities on federal lands are utilized in a number of ways. Congress oversees and determines changes to federal energy and mineral development revenue

- 10:00 a.m. – 10:30 a.m. Break down camp
- 10:30 a.m. - 12:30 p.m. Flightseeing Tour of Coastal Plain

Members will observe the Coastal Plain firsthand and learn its importance to the Porcupine Caribou Herd, migratory birds, polar bears, and other Arctic wildlife. This area is the summer calving grounds of the Porcupine Caribou Herd, the summer nesting grounds for hundreds of bird species from around the world, and the winter denning grounds for polar bears. Members will observe the unique landscape of the Coastal Plain and learn about the interactions between permafrost, water, and snow to form the lakes and habitats critical for Arctic wildlife. They will also view areas that were leased in the June 5, 2026 Arctic National Wildlife Refuge lease sale.

This flightseeing tour takes Members to visit the specific, legally defined Coastal Plain, or "1002 Area". This area is the subject of the Refuge's most active legislative and regulatory disputes, including congressionally mandated lease sales. Direct physical observation of caribou calving habitat and oil and gas lease sale tracts is fact-finding that cannot be replicated by a briefing alone, and is the basis for Members' independent judgment on pending legislation, appropriations, and oversight affecting this specific unit of land.

 - 12:30 p.m. - 1:30 p.m. Inflight Presentation - International Arctic Politics

While inflight, Members will learn about international Arctic politics and circumpolar cooperation, including the Arctic Council (an intergovernmental forum fostering cooperation in the circumpolar Arctic), the United States' role as an Arctic nation, the Council's six permanent participants, the impact of increased shipping from changing sea ice conditions, and the governance and roles of Indigenous Arctic peoples outside the United States.

This presentation and discussion are relevant to any Member work touching U.S.

Members will take a tour with Arctic Village local experts to learn the history of Indigenous people in Arctic Alaska, dating back more than 10,000 years, and about the Village, its people, and their spiritual, cultural, and subsistence connections to the Arctic Refuge.

This is a walking tour of an occupied Native community whose members are direct stakeholders in Refuge policy. Observing the community's day-to-day relationship to the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge is direct evidence Members can cite when evaluating subsistence and consultation provisions in any Refuge-related legislation or oversight.
