Session I: What Keeps Society Together?
Common values, a sense of national identity, or material interests — what are the foundations of our society? When does one “belong”? How big is the difference between the political and social recognition of minorities?

a) The United States as a Multicultural Ideal: Myth or Reality?
Is the American Creed still alive? Or is the U.S. an individualized market society, united only through tangible interests? Is there still a tension between race consciousness and color blind ideals? Or do liberty and freedom lead to equal opportunity?

Keynote: Professor Peter H. Schuck
Speech: Simeon E. Baldwin Professor of Law
        Yale Law School, Yale University
        New Haven, CT
        (confirmed)

Speaker: Maria Hinojosa

10:45 a.m.  b) Germany: From Consensus to Diversity?
Do “parallel societies” challenge the ethnocentric, liberal, secular state? To what extent does the majority of the society have to open up to other cultures? What should be the state’s demands regarding a “Leitkultur” [defining culture]?
Speakers: Professor Dr. Jutta Limbach
President
Goethe-Institut, e.V.
Former President of the German Constitutional Court
Munich
(invited)

Seyran Ates

Reports of the Individual Teams about their Networking Experience
Session II:
United through Common Goals? Minorities in Business and Professional Life

In many companies in the U.S. and Germany, diversity is regarded as an asset. Do common tasks and assignments make cultural differences irrelevant? Why do many migrants work in low-status jobs? Who succeeds in advancing to the middle class and beyond? What are the prerequisites for doing so? Do class and money eliminate the race (and ethnicity) issue?

Speakers
- Dr. Thomas Enders
  Chief Executive Officer
  EADS
  Munich
  (invited)

  The Honorable
  Sergio Marchi
  Senior Strategist
  Global Commission on International Migration
