In this session, we will explore the key elements involved in designing successful remote care programs. This includes developing a long-term integrated care strategy, creating patient-centered journeys, unlocking the value of clinical and patient-generated data for care personalization, clinician alignment, and investing in the right technology infrastructure to support programs at scale. In addition to sharing the experiences from prior implementations, the panel will trace the future trajectory for connected care based on industry trends and signals, and how emerging digital levers like AI/ML, AR/VR, and advances in sensing technologies and novel biomarkers are set to disrupt this space.

Panelists from Highmark Health and the Blue Cross Blue Shield Association (BCBSA) will provide an update on new capabilities and added terminologies of the Gravity Project, the multistakeholder initiative for the interoperable exchange and use of SDOH data. Panelists will also share successful examples of how insurers are leveraging that data. For example, they'll discuss how Highmark Health is using digital tools to connect members with community resources to improve health and access to care, including food, housing and transportation; how both companies are leveraging data to address health disparities as part of the Blue Cross Blue Shield National Health Equity Strategy; and how they're leading advancements regarding the transparent and ethical use of health equity data. OR Hospitals of the Future: Design in a Digital World Description: Rapidly advancing technology will require healthcare to undergo huge structural transformations as digitized health platforms change how communities interact with hospitals. But how does this look in practice? Technology will radically alter hospital design. In this session, we discuss a model of future hospitals existing as virtual space with physical outposts rather than a physical space struggling to integrate novel technologies. Minimizing uniquely clinical high-tech areas, with multifunctional modular areas distributed around the hospital campus and wider community, offers radical flexibility to meet evolving patient needs. Acute care is coordinated remotely, with the central hub providing in-person care to a small group of patients who have specific needs. Harnessing technology to ensure resource optimization allows increasingly complex geriatric needs to be catered for. This model was selected as a "highly commended" entry to the Wolfson Economics Prize 2021.

3:00 – 4:00 PM	Concurrent Education Sessions: Using AI to Monitor Quality in Telemedicine Visits Description: The COVID-19 pandemic accelerated the already exponential telemedicine adoption rate. However, healthcare institutions and telemedicine providers are struggling to monitor and assure high levels of care quality guidelines adherence, especially regarding antibiotics and controversial COVID-specific drug prescriptions. We present here prescription and diagnostic data from more than 300K telehealth visits, upon which a high level of antibiotic stewardship and COVID guidelines adherence was achieved. We demonstrate that easy-to-implement, AI-based algorithms—like simple decision trees applied on medical notes—can be of extreme importance to help to provide constructive individual feedback and real-time quality monitoring and improvement. OR What's Next With the Public Health Data Modernization Initiative? Description: The CDC Data Modernization Initiative has received $950 million to advance enterprise-level infrastructure modernization at CDC and with public health departments at the state, local, county, tribal, and territorial levels in the U.S. This session will bring together CDC, ONC, and state leaders to discuss how to build transformative modern digital health solutions that are scalable, replicable, and sustainable..

9:45 – 10:00 AM	Concurrent Education Sessions Healthcare Cybersecurity '22: New Threats & How to Stop Them Description: Healthcare is subjected to more data breaches than ever. Structural data breaches are routine. How can IT proactively respond to security threats? What are the most prevalent forms of attacks, and what are the targets? Learn about the latest episodes, how they are started, and how they can be prevented. OR Making Interoperability Easier and More Valuable Description: Most individual health systems can't keep up with technology, but a group of systems working cooperatively can lower barriers to implementation. Graphite Health is bringing health systems together to make data interoperability easy and affordable. Graphite will develop a common data language to form the foundation of a platform structure that will be used to run a secure, open digital app marketplace. This will make accessing digital tools as easy and painless as downloading an app on a phone.
10:00 – 11:00 AM	Concurrent Education Sessions: Experiencing, Enhancing and Evolving the Federal EHR Description: The single, common federal electronic health record (EHR) is reshaping how federal agencies deliver health care. There are tens of thousands of clinicians, nurses and administrators using the federal EHR today to enhance patient care. Hear from those experiencing the positive impact of the EHR firsthand, and learn how they are evolving the EHR to meet the health care needs of tomorrow. OR The Future of State Health Innovation Description: In this session, state and local officials will discuss their journey toward smarter health IT systems and solutions. Through leveraging information and technology, panelists will share best practices for others to navigate their own modernization efforts.
11:30 AM – 12:30 PM	Concurrent Education Sessions: Digital Connectivity as a Social Determinant of Health Description: The COVID-19 pandemic led to rapid expansion of telehealth and other digital health technologies. Health systems committed to healthcare innovation are using telehealth as a powerful tool to optimize access to pediatric experts and support digital transformation. This session will describe a free-standing pediatric teaching hospital's experience implementing sustainable pediatric hybrid models of traditional and virtual care. The session will highlight

	multidisciplinary program best practices and technological advances implemented to ensure successful virtual care encounters for culturally diverse communities. Speakers will describe critical digital health capabilities and support services tailored to meet individualized patient needs to overcome healthcare disparities and improve adoption to virtual-digital health platforms. Use cases and quality improvement projects will be presented, showing positive outcomes in promoting health equity for underserved populations. OR Dispelling the Misconceptions Hindering HIE Evolution Description: As the healthcare industry moves to a value-based system, health information exchanges (HIEs) have a vital role in supporting the growing data needs to improve health outcomes. This important and timely session presented by Wisconsin Statewide Health Information Network (WISHIN)'s CEO Joe Kachelski and KPI Ninja's Renee Towne will dispel misconceptions about the obstacles and work required to evolve our nation's HIEs to supporting value-based care more comprehensively.
1:15 - 2:15 AM	HIMSS Staff Led Tour of the Interoperability Showcase on areas of interest to federal policymakers
2:30 – 3:30 PM	Concurrent Education Sessions: Have Pandemic Response Tools Worked? Evidence From the Field Description: COVID-19 electronic platforms encompass tools that are meant to limit the spread of the disease and foster a safe return to work, school, and everyday activities. Many have become used to tools that check for symptoms, assign risk levels, monitor and provide notifications about exposure, provide event passports for entry into large events and community gatherings, report on vaccinations and other related information services. This session addresses how these tools are perceived by users, lessons learned on implementation strategies, and how effective they have been in achieving their purpose. OR How eHealth Exchange Increased Data Quality and Usability Description: The eHealth Exchange, one of the oldest and largest health information networks in the U.S., implemented the nation's leading content testing program to improve clinical interoperability over the last three years. Partnering with The Sequoia Project's Interoperability Testing Platform, the network began requiring testing not only of the ability to share data among network participants but testing of the content of the data shared. Because the eHealth Exchange is one of the largest health information networks in the country, including 75% of all hospitals and more than 60 regional and state health information networks using more than 30 different technology vendors, the program meant to improve the quality of data for its own members has had wide-reaching, national-level impact. This presentation will discuss the enhanced, rigorous testing program designed by The Sequoia Project for the eHealth Exchange, which has had ripple effects improving data usability beyond the network.
4:00 – 5:00 PM	Concurrent Education Sessions: Algorithm Governance: Guidelines and a Case Study Description: Governance is concerned with value and risk for an organization. In healthcare, organizational governance is historically underpinned by clinical governance. For some time now, this has been further complemented by data

	governance. More recently, advances in technology and changes in practice have created a new need for algorithm governance. This session will focus on algorithm governance, emphasizing its increasing role in decision-making and process design in the context of machine learning; artificial intelligence; and rapidly developing knowledge into new data understanding. We will draw upon the experience of New Zealand, where a national algorithm hub was deployed to aid with COVID-19 decision-making. The hub was underpinned by a new, multifaceted governance framework. OR Security and Data Privacy: How a Privacy Framework Can Help Description: This session will cover the general evolution of data privacy laws and frameworks, including breach notifications. Participants will walk away with a thorough understanding of the recent history of data privacy laws in the U.S. (federal and "patchwork" of state laws), as well as the distinction between the NIST Privacy Framework and the NIST 800-53 Rev. 5 Privacy Controls. There will be a case study example that will also help participants become familiar with the NIST Privacy Framework and how it can be used to guide risk-based decisions about privacy of data. The session will also give tactical information about how an organization can manage current regulatory risks while preparing for new and unpredictable risks to the privacy of individuals and their data.
