12. Description of the sponsor's interest in the subject matter of the trip and its role in organizing and/or conducting the trip:

The UN Foundation (UNF) works to educate all Americans, including the U.S. Congress, on the importance of a strong U.S.-UN relationship, with a particular focus on global health issues such as child nutrition and food security. This learning trip provides an opportunity for policymakers to better understand how the UN is working to prevent and treat severe acute malnutrition, alleviate food insecurity, and generally promote good health and well-being in Senegal.

UNF is the sole sponsor of this trip, organizing all aspects of the program and logistics. UNF handles all outreach to congressional offices and is the contact for planning purposes. The UN Foundation received a grant from the Eleanor Crook Foundation (ECF) to partially support this trip. ECF has not played any role in organizing this trip and has not been involved in the selection or invitation of the trip participants.

15b2. Provide the reason for selecting the location of the event or trip:

Although stable and democratic, Senegal is one of the world's least developed countries, with around half of the population living below the poverty line. The economy relies heavily on cash crops and fishing, both of which are vulnerable to climate change, insufficient food production, droughts, land degradation, and high food prices. This has led Senegal to struggle with high rates of maternal and infant mortality and severe acute malnutrition. Compounding these factors, COVID-19 has affected all aspects of Senegal's health system and early in the crisis access to nutrition services was often impaired, threatening the provision of lifesaving treatment for malnourished children in the country's central, northern, and eastern regions, where food and nutrition insecurity are most prevalent. Meanwhile, lower incomes and measures to control the spread of the pandemic reduced the availability of and access to quality food, leading to rising malnutrition rates.

Over the course of four days, the delegation will learn how the UN system is working collaboratively to overcome these challenges. The delegation will conduct multiple site visits and engage with high-level decisionmakers, exploring how the UN is partnering with the U.S. and the Government of Senegal to detect and treat children with wasting, diversify and improve the availability of ready-to-use therapeutic foods, administer school feeding programs, promote sustainable agricultural production, help smallholders farmers gain better access to farm inputs and services, implement food-for-assets initiatives, encourage routine childhood vaccination programs, and related activities.

While stable and democratic, Senegal is among the world's least developed countries, ranking 66th out of 116 countries in the 2021 Global Hunger Index and with 38.5% of its population living in poverty (World Bank, 2020). Food insecurity and malnutrition stand at 7.2% and 8.25% respectively, with major regional disparities. Senegal is frequently subject to climate hazards, especially in the semi-arid North. Insufficient food production, droughts, land degradation, high food prices and low resilience have further compounded food insecurity.

The delegation will tour a micro-garden—a form of soilless horticultural production undertaken in small urban spaces that contributes to the fight against food insecurity.

Agricultural space in Dakar, which is home to 25% of the country's population, is incredibly sparse. To provide the city's population with alternative supply solutions, FAO, in collaboration with the Government of Senegal, the Municipality of Dakar, and several NGOs launched the micro-gardening project in 1999. Since then, the project has been re-launched several times and in 2004 the project was transferred to other cities in Senegal and Africa.

Micro-gardening technology permits soilless horticultural production in small urban spaces such as roofs, yards, or vacant areas. The project provides families with food and allows them to sell the surplus for a small income. It generally targets environmental enhancement for fragile groups in societies by enabling inhabitants to produce food in urban situations. The program in Dakar has been very successful, providing more than 4,000 families with fresh vegetables and a surplus to sell.

The delegation will meet with Amb. Mike Raynor and the U.S. Team to discuss U.S.-Senegal Relations and provide an overview of bilateral and multilateral support for global hunger and food security initiatives in Senegal.

Senegal is a focus country for Feed the Future. The first phase of Feed the Future investments focused on scaling-up productivity for four value chains—rice, maize, millet, and fisheries—by improving market linkages, post-harvest infrastructure, access to finance, private sector business development, and public sector capacity. Investments also helped to reform Senegal’s important fisheries sector, enhancing the participation of local fishermen and women in decision-making and management, and ensuring that Senegal’s fisheries can continue to provide lasting jobs and food security. Ongoing Feed the Future activities continue to promote healthier diets by increasing the production, marketing, and consumption of diversified, healthy and nutritious foods.

10:30am – 10:45am Transit via hired car to UN in Senegal Office

10:45am – 11:30am Meeting with UN Industrial Development Organization (UNIDO) and Agropole Coordinator

Senegal’s agricultural sector employs 50% of the country’s workforce and is mainly driven by the cultivation of rice, corn, manioc and peanuts. The lack of access to quality inputs and land, particularly in remote rural areas, has, however, traditionally limited the development of agricultural cooperatives and processing companies, and undermined overall food production. UNIDO is supporting Senegal’s efforts to overcome these challenges and develop the country’s agribusiness and agro-industries through the operationalization of competitive and integrated “agricultural growth poles,” otherwise known as agropoles, which are important new development tools designed to kickstart the shift from subsistence to commercial agriculture.

UNIDO is helping Senegal establish 3 agropoles for high-potential value chains: fruits and vegetables, and cashew nuts; aquaculture and fisheries; and livestock and other agro-value chains. Each agropole will operate as a private-public entity linking rural enterprises to the market and provide the appropriate infrastructure, technologies and services to support the development of small and medium-sized enterprises.

Location: UN in Senegal Office

11:45am – 1:00pm Working Lunch with U.S. Department of Agriculture Team

The delegation will have a working lunch with the U.S. Department of Agriculture Team, including Mr. Barret Bumpas, Regional Agriculture

Attache. The delegation will be briefed on the impact of USDA's McGovern-Dole Food for Education and Child Nutrition Program in Senegal, which marked its 20th anniversary in June 2022.

Signed into law as part of the 2002 Farm Bill, the McGovern-Dole Program focuses on reducing hunger and improving literacy and primary education, especially for girls, in developing countries around the globe. USDA partners with non-profit groups, cooperatives, and international organizations such as WFP to provide not only school meals, but also teacher training and related support to help boost school enrollment and academic performance. At the same time, the program aims to improve children's health and learning capacity even before they enter school by offering nutrition and support services for pregnant and nursing women, infants, and pre-schoolers. The support of the U.S. agricultural community is vital to the success of the McGovern-Dole Program, with more than 1.3 million metric tons of donated U.S. commodities being used to create nutritious, culturally appropriate school meals throughout the years

1:00pm – 1:45pm Transit to Pikine Elementary School

1:45pm – 2:45pm Tour of Pikine Elementary School with UNICEF, Meeting with Students and Teachers

The delegation will tour an elementary school in the disadvantaged suburbs of Dakar, to see first-hand how the pandemic has impacted on children's education and how UNICEF is offering alternatives and supporting the Government to overcome the current learning crisis. The school in Pikine offers catch-up classes and accelerated learning programmes to out-of-school children, many of whom could not enroll or dropped out due to the pandemic.

In Senegal, the COVID-19 pandemic and national school closures temporarily disrupted the education of 3.5 million learners, in addition to the 1.5 million children already out of school. UNICEF, as the lead coordinating agency for the Development Partners Thematic Group for Education, has been supporting the Ministry of Education to formulate and implement the COVID-19 Education Sector Response Plan, ensuring that learning never stops and that no child is left behind.

3:45pm – 4:45pm Visit WFP Nutrition Project and School Canteens at Ngueror School

The delegation will tour a local elementary school where students are provided hot meals through a partnership between the Ministry of National Education (MEN) and WFP. They will meet with students benefiting from the program and hold a working session with the school management committee to understand the program's implementation process and its measurable impacts on student retention and educational performance.

As part of its COVID-19 pandemic response plan, Senegal's Ministry of National Education (MEN) launched a school feeding program in March 2021 with CFAF 552 million (close to $1 million) in GPE funding and operational support from WFP. This emergency response, which is in line with the Presidential School Feeding Program, is aimed at mitigating the effects of the health crisis on student education, ensuring the continuity of education services, and encouraging vulnerable students to attend school and achieve academic success.

In partnership with the MEN, WFP provided 137,311 schoolchildren (54% girls and 46% boys) with meals in 749 schools across 11 regions of Senegal in 2021.

The delegation will tour a district medical warehouse where essential commodities such as vaccines, antimalarials, and family planning products are shipped, stored, and distributed to local health facilities.

In Senegal, the National Supply Pharmacy (PNA) oversees storage and distribution of essential health commodities. PNA operates one central medical store in Dakar and 11 regional warehouses or Pharmacies (PRA) that serve 74 district-level commodity stores. Like many similar structures in the country, the condition of regional warehouses had been deteriorating, putting at risk the quality of health commodities and the lives of patients who would be using them. In FY18, PNA asked the USAID Global Health Supply Chain-Technical Assistance Francophone Task Order if it could assist in the renovation of three warehouses in Fatick, Diourbel, and Saint-Louis.

USAID responded with a package that considered not only the physical renovation of the buildings, but also steps needed to improve stock management, the capacity of warehouse managers and their work safety. Completed in 2019, the renovation of three regional warehouses in Senegal had a direct impact on the quality of commodities distributed to almost 3 million people residing in these regions.

Obstetric fistula is one of the most serious and tragic childbirth injuries—it occurs mostly among women and girls living in extreme poverty, especially those far from medical services—and leaves women incontinent and often leads to chronic medical problems, depression, social isolation and deepening poverty. Through the Campaign to End Fistula, UNFPA works to prevent and treat fistula and to rehabilitate fistula survivors so they can rejoin their communities.

2:00pm – 3:30pm Meeting with Women’s Groups Nutrition Enhancement Program Participants

The delegation will meet with women who participated in CNDM’s Nutrition Enhancement Program, an initiative to work with mothers and other caregivers to address many of the root causes of malnutrition and stunting.

For more than a decade, major successive shocks in Senegal, such as a series of serious droughts, have impacted local economies and forced households to economize on essential things, such as health care and food consumption. Over time, this has led to stark disparities in nutritional improvements between regions of the country. Whereas national stunting rates have remained stable at under 20% for about a decade, much of the central, northern, and eastern parts of the country—which typically suffer most from the food and nutrition insecurity—continue to show high stunting rates.

To improve the situation, the national Nutrition Enhancement Program (NEP), supported by the World Bank, sought to combat multiple barriers facing women as they seek to access nutrition and finances for their families. Between 2017-2021, CNDN, which oversees the implementation of the NEP, took a multifaceted approach, putting in place interventions to empower women in the areas characterized by a high prevalence of food insecurity and acute malnutrition in children under the age of five, such as the production and processing of agricultural and animal goods with high nutritional value; the economic management of new technologies; building community solidarity for access to production assets; providing health, nutrition, hygiene, and sanitation services; and the promotion of essential family health and nutrition practices.

These new tools were used to improve household food security, diversification and feeding practices of children aged 6 to 23 months, as well as pregnant and lactating women. Many groups benefited from improved nutrition services, including a total of 461,076 pregnant and lactating women, adolescent girls, and children under the age of five. In addition, 102,480 women were empowered with new knowledge and skills to obtain sufficient quantities of food throughout the year.

The delegation will additionally discuss efforts to strengthen the health commodities procurement system in Senegal, including the development and establishment of an improved procurement and stock management information system. In close collaboration with the National Pharmacy Supply, PATH is working to improve stock management through the deployment of an enhanced information system and optimizing the availability of essential medicines and technologies

Micronutrient deficiencies, defined as the lack of one or more of the essential vitamins and minerals required for healthy growth, development, and functioning, affects all ages and socioeconomic groups.

As more and more countries in West Africa consume rice as a staple, this innovative pilot tests a program entry mode for fortified rice in large-scale WFP operations. The objectives are to implement a new, operative, market model using imported kernels, locally-produced rice and local blending; optimize program set up and scale-up; and develop a regional model for WFP in West Africa and beyond.

As part of PARFA, UNIDO and IFAD have been focusing on improving agro-ecosystem services in Senegal and the food security and incomes of smallholder farmers by creating income-generating jobs for rural people—especially youth and women. Recent achievements include supporting smallholder farmers in using new methodologies and modern equipment (powered by renewable energy) for the processing and conservation of food products.

Washington, DC 20515

Dear Ms. Stoebe:

Pursuant to House Rule 25, clause 5(d)(2), the Committee on Ethics hereby approves your proposed trip to Senegal,¹ scheduled for October 8 to 14, 2022, sponsored by United Nations Foundation and Eleanor Crook Foundation.
