Question 10: See the detailed agenda of activities below

Question 12:

Stanford Biodesign is the primary organizer of the Health Technology Innovation Congressional Bootcamp, overseeing all aspects of course content, planning, invitations, and program delivery. This one-and-a-half-day bootcamp is designed to immerse participants in health technology innovation through a series of sessions that promote cross-sector dialogue among experts in entrepreneurship, healthcare, biotech, and policy. Participants will gain a comprehensive understanding of the journey a new health technology must take from conception to commercialization, while also exploring the innovator's perspective on the significant impact of policy on healthcare innovation.

The program will cover essential elements necessary to cultivate a thriving healthcare innovation ecosystem in the United States, equipping participants to make informed decisions that enhance patient access and outcomes. Stanford Biodesign's mission is to train aspiring innovators in a proven, repeatable process for identifying and addressing important unmet health-related needs, inventing new solutions, and developing implementation plans to advance these technologies into patient care. Our educational efforts include courses and programs for faculty, fellows, graduate, and undergraduate students. Additionally, the policy arm of our program produces education and data-driven research to help current and future policymakers understand how health policies influence innovation. Our offerings focus on real-world healthcare challenges, the potential of existing and emerging health technologies, and the ways in which relevant policy decisions can either facilitate or hinder the impact of these solutions. This congressional bootcamp aligns with our educational mission by preparing Congressional Staffers with the comprehensive knowledge needed to critically evaluate the regulation and governance of health technology and biotech, ultimately ensuring that their constituents benefit from safe and effective innovations.

Health Technology Innovation Congressional Bootcamp Program

Introduction

The one-and-a-half-day Health Technology Innovation Congressional Bootcamp is designed to immerse participants in the world of health technology innovation through a series of sessions that foster cross-sector dialogue among experts in entrepreneurship, healthcare, biotech, and policy. Participants will gain a holistic understanding of what is required for a new health technology to advance from conception to commercialization and explore the innovator's perspective on the critical impact of policy on healthcare innovation. They will learn about the many elements necessary to foster a thriving American healthcare innovation ecosystem, equipping them to make informed decisions that improve patient access and outcomes.

Bootcamp Overview

Purpose: Provide a comprehensive understanding of the health technology innovation landscape, equipping staffers to make informed decisions about its regulation and governance to improve patient access and outcomes.

Intended Participants: Bipartisan and bicameral participation of Congressional staffers with health portfolios.

Dates – see detailed schedule below

- 8/20/2025 – Arrival and evening program
- 8/21/2025 – Program
- 8/22/2025 – Morning program. Departure at 1pm

Location: Stanford University and the San Francisco Bay Area – in person only.

Travel, Lodging, and Meals: Participants will receive round-trip airfare and ground transportation to Stanford University from Washington, DC, housing near the Stanford campus (Stanford Guest House), and meals that are part of the bootcamp. Stanford Biodesign will diligently comply with congressional ethics rules.

Format

Real-World Insights: Case studies showcasing company founders sharing their innovation journey of bringing medical devices, digital health solutions, and pharmaceuticals to patients. They will explore when and how health policies impacted the innovation process.

Immersive Learning: Field trips to small to mid-size healthtech and biotech companies, and Stanford facilities and research centers. These visits will include incubators and early and growth-stage companies.

Roundtable Discussions: Diverse experts across the innovation ecosystem analyze emerging legislative issues and their impact on health technology innovation. This balanced approach promotes cross-party dialogue among the staffers and panelists.

Face-to-face engagement: Opportunities to meet innovators, developers, VCs, researchers, and physicians through company visits, panels, dinners, and receptions to build networks and ask questions.

Learning Goals

- Gain a holistic understanding of what is required for a new health technology to advance from conception to commercialization.
- Understand the current policy landscape that influences health technology and biotech innovations.
- Engage in immersive learning experiences to see the technology in action, ask questions, and meet the people behind it. Explore the interconnection between policy and innovation in real clinical scenarios.
- Build networks within the health technology community.
- Develop the tools and knowledge to drive impactful policy changes and foster a healthy health tech innovation ecosystem to improve patient access and outcomes.

Note that the program is subject to change to align with the legislative agenda.

Mr. James Stursberg
Committee on Energy & Commerce
2125 Rayburn House Office Building
Washington, DC 20515

Dear Mr. Stursberg:

Pursuant to House Rule 25, clause 5(d)(2), the Committee on Ethics hereby approves your proposed trip to Menlo Park, California, scheduled for August 20 to 22, 2025, sponsored by Stanford University.

You must complete an Employee Post-Travel Disclosure Form (which your employing Member must also sign) and file it, together with a Sponsor Post-Travel Disclosure Form completed by the trip sponsor, with the Clerk of the House within 15 days after your return from travel. As part of that filing, you are also required to attach a copy of this letter and both the Traveler and Primary Trip Sponsor Forms (including attachments) you previously submitted to the Committee in seeking pre-approval for this trip. If you are required to file an annual Financial Disclosure Statement, you must also report all travel expenses totaling more than $480 from a single source on the "Travel" schedule of your annual Financial Disclosure Statement covering this calendar year. Finally, Travel Regulation § 404(d) also requires you to keep a copy of all request forms and supporting information provided to the Committee for three subsequent Congresses from the date of travel.

If you have any further questions, please contact the Committee's Office of Advice and Education at extension 5-7103.

Sincerely,

Michael Guest

Dear James,

As you may know, I am a physician, innovator, and now academic leader, dedicated to advancing patient outcomes through innovation. To realize that vision, it is essential for us to come together, collaborate, and share our diverse perspectives. With this goal in mind, we are pleased to invite you to participate in Stanford Biodesign's Health Technology Innovation Congressional Bootcamp.

Dates: August 20-22, 2025

Location: Stanford University, Stanford, CA

Participants: Bipartisan and bicameral staffers with health policy portfolios

Purpose: This one-and-a-half-day program is designed to immerse participants in the world of health technology innovation through a series of sessions that foster cross-sector dialogue among experts in entrepreneurship, medtech, biotech, digital health/AI, and policy.

Program Highlights:

- Learning Outcomes:
 - Understand the journey of health technology from conception to commercialization
 - Explore the impact of policy on healthcare innovation
 - Equip yourself to make informed decisions to improve patient access and outcomes
- Sessions/Activities:
 - Interactive panels with venture capitalists, founders, innovators, scientists, corporate leaders, payers, and physicians
 - Discussions on topical areas such as AI, pricing, intellectual property, regulatory frameworks, and reimbursement
 - Founder stories from startups
 - Hands-on demonstrations of cutting-edge technologies
 - Networking with the health technology community
- Logistics:
 - Airfare, lodging, and meals will be covered by the program (per Congressional ethics rules)
- Next Steps:
 - Review: program overview
 - Respond: We ask that you please reply to this email with your level of interest:
 - Highly interested: "Yes. Please hold a spot for me."
 - Very interested: "I am not sure of my availability now, but please check back."
 - Not available
 - Confirmation: You will receive a detailed agenda and required ethics materials upon confirmation
 - Share: Send us your pressing questions and issues. This will allow us to gather the right experts and tailor the workshop to address your specific needs and challenges.

- Contact Information: For questions or further details - Susie Spielman (s.spielman@stanford.edu),
Director of Policy Education

We hope you'll join us for this enriching experience!
