House staff were invited because of their work on education, workforce development, economic development, and social welfare issues. All have responsibility for these federal issues in their offices. The site visit will highlight the successes and challenges of education, workforce and economic development, and human services programs and initiatives in northeast Ohio.

Question #12 Interest and Role of Sponsors:

Jobs for the Future (JFF) identifies sites of interest and priority topics for site visit programming, including featured programs and initiatives, based on their evidence base, scalability, and quality. JFF develops and executes the agenda, coordinates logistics for the trip, and serves as the point of contact for staff. JFF will use grant funding from the Joyce Foundation, the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation, and the Conrad N. Hilton Foundation to support the Congressional Staff Network and this site visit.

The Joyce Foundation is a private, nonpartisan philanthropy based in Chicago, IL, that invests in public policies and strategies to advance racial equity and economic mobility for the next generation in the Great Lakes region. The Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation is based in Seattle, Washington and has a mission to create a world where every person has the opportunity to live a healthy, productive life. And the Conrad N. Hilton Foundation is a global humanitarian foundation based in Westlake Village, California, which aims to improve the lives of individuals living in poverty and experiencing disadvantage throughout the world.

Each sponsor's work is informed by research, analysis, and best practice. The missions of JFF, the Joyce Foundation, the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation, and the Conrad N. Hilton Foundation support the purpose of the trip: highlighting innovative, evidence-based programs and policies that drive economic mobility. House attendees will learn about strategies that leaders in northeast Ohio are implementing to meet the region's talent needs; they will engage with economic development and workforce practitioners, educators, employers, and workers and learners who are involved in these programs.

Monday July 7, 2025

Good morning,

On behalf of Jobs for the Future, I'm writing to invite you to an upcoming Congressional Staff Network (CSN) site visit to northeast Ohio on Tuesday, August 26 – Thursday, August 28.

This site visit will highlight coordinated, cross-sector efforts to rebuild and modernize the region's manufacturing economy. Sessions will explore a range of initiatives, from activities to inform students and their families about skilled trades careers, to industry-aligned, short-term credentialing pathways that ladder up to bachelor's degrees and beyond.

Leaders from the Manufacturing Advocacy and Growth Network (MAGNET), part of the national network of U.S. Department of Commerce Manufacturing Extension Partnerships, will share how they collaborate with community colleges, regional economic development and workforce agencies, and employers to establish public-private partnerships that support talent pipeline development. Specifically, staff will learn about MAGNET's holistic approach to helping veterans and people with criminal records enter high-wage manufacturing jobs, and joint programs with local school districts and youth-serving organizations to inspire the next generation of advanced manufacturing talent.

Ohio also offers a unique opportunity to explore how state policies investments – e.g., the Individual Microcredential Assistance Program, Tech Cred, College Credit Plus, and the Ohio Work Ready Grant – drive improved postsecondary attainment rates and student labor market outcomes.

Please confirm your participation by Thursday, July 17. Once you confirm your plans to participate, our team will share final information for the trip, including the agenda and the necessary ethics documentation.

Best,

Few young people have access to the essential career navigation and work-based learning services they need to make informed decisions about their education and career options after high school. To prepare all students for fulfilling careers, Ohio and the state's northeastern region have implemented policies and programs to expand opportunities for students to engage in career-based learning system-wide. Specifically, Ohio requires high schoolers to complete 250 hours of formal work-based learning before graduation, and there are various mechanisms for embedding career exploration and planning opportunities into curriculum.

In this session, speakers will share how local entities are partnering with the Cleveland Metropolitan School District, employers, and other stakeholders to implement this state requirement and embed career exploration and planning opportunities throughout students' educational journeys. Staffers will learn about Youth Opportunities Unlimited and the Greater Cleveland Career Consortium Planning and Career Exploration (PACE) program and specific work-based learning models, such as the statewide High School Tech Internship Program and summer youth employment programs.

Specifically, speakers will explore the evidence base around several rapid reskilling models, including earn and learn and stackable short-term credentials, and discuss efforts to bridge institutional siloes across noncredit and for-credit programming. For reference, Rand Corporation recently released a study of Ohio's stackable credential pathways.
